Clifford Kerns Quits Job With Legion Corps

Music-Drill Leader Says Action Due To "Circumstances"

Clifford L. Kerns has resigned as music and drill director of the Circleville American Legion drum and bugle corps, a job he has held for the past three years.

During that time, the "Gladiators" have ranked third, fourth and fifth on the highly impressive list of similar units in Ohio. Last Summer, Kerns won the title of state champion American Legion drum major.

Kerns said he decided to give up his post with the corps because of "prevailing circumstances." Tom Larimer, son of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Larimer of 100 Seyfert Ave., has been named to take over Kerns' duties as music director.

Larimer is a junior in the school of music at Ohio State University, majoring in instrumental music education.

HE HAS been a member of the famed OSU marching band for the past two years. In addition, he is a member of the university's concert and activities bands, and also the OSU symphony orchestra.

Larimer has been a member of the Legion drum and bugle corps here for the past two years.

Jim Morrison, newly elected commander of the "Gladiators", said that the group's top aim will be to "give Circleville the best possible drum and bugle corps."

He reminded members that "much hard work is in store for the corps this Winter and next Spring."

Morrison issued a public invitation to all prospective new members of the corps, urging them to attend the next practice session—set for Memorial Hall next Wednesday at 8:30 p. m. He said the corps has several openings in all sections.

"We want interested men, whether they are veterans or not," he said.

The corps is permitted to enroll non-veterans up to 20 percent of its membership.

Church Urged Slow Emphasis On Preaching

CLEVELAND (AP) — The church must stop putting most of its emphasis on preaching, and recover its heritage of social influence, a New York minister says.

The Rev. James H. Robinson of New York, pastor of Harlem's Church of the Master (Presbyterian), said the church must re-establish itself as a moral force and an agency of social help.

He told the National Conference of Churches and Social Welfare that the churches must develop their own standards for welfare service, expand their agencies, and help public and secular agencies to "a higher way of service."

"It was the church which initiated and established all the major institutions for social well-being and social redemption of the people in this republic," he said, "despite the fact that it sometimes found it most difficult to carry out his obligation because of indecision from within and opposition from without."

Then, he said, many churches turned inward upon themselves, and decided the preacher was the only specialist worth supporting.

"To this day, I believe there are denominations which will not ordain a man unless he is going to preach in a pulpit and pastor a church," Robinson said.

The conference, attended by 1,500 delegates, is sponsored by the National Council of Churches of Christ in the U. S. A.

UN Office Wins Nobel Peace Prize

Refugee Commission Honored For Work With Displaced Folks

OSLO (AP)—The Norwegian Nobel Committee today awarded the Nobel Peace Prize for 1954 to the office of the United Nations high commission for refugees. It reserved the 1955 prize.

The United Nations agency is the 53rd recipient of the world's top award for peace making. The award is worth $35,066.

The office of the U. N. high commissioner for refugees was established in 1951 under the direction of Dr. G. J. van Heuven Goedhart, an Amsterdam editor and former Dutch minister of justice.

Purpose of the officei s to give protection to refugees who left their home countries in fear of political, religious or racial persecution. Its headquarters are in Geneva.

The office administers the U. N. refugee emergency fund, which was set up in 1952 to give emergency aid to the most needy groups of refugees.

* * *

THE PEACE prize is awarded annually under the will of Swedish industrialist Alfred Nobel, inventor of dynamite.

Dismayed by the use of his invention in modern warfare, Nobel made provisions for a prize to be awarded each year to the person "who shall have most and best promoted the fraternity of nations and the abolishment or reduction of standing armies, and the formation and extension of peace congresses."

The prize may also be awarded to institutions or organizations. The international Red Cross has twice been honored.

It was the second time the U. N. had been honored. Dr. Ralph J. Bunche won the peace prize in 1950 for his work in getting a Palestine armistice.

George C. Marshall of the United States received the 1953 peace prize, the last awarded. The 1952 award went to Albert Schweitzer.

Selection of the peace prize winner is made by a five-member committee picked by the Norwegian Parliament. The committee meets in secret and never gives a reason for its choice.

Goedhart, a wartime resistance leader, formerly headed the Netherlands delegation to the U. N.

He took the job of trying to find jobs for refugees after the international refugee organization went out of existence. His chief problem now is resetting or intergrating 350,000 refugees in Europe.

The office provides legal and social safeguards for about two million refugees throughout the world.

Goedhart works closely with international church groups and welfare societies.

Crash In Colorado Brings Major Probe

LONGMONT, Colo. (AP) — United Air Lines has hired an explosives-expert to delve into circumstances surrounding the crash of one of its DC6Bs near here Tuesday night with the loss of 44 lives.

UAL President W. A. Patterson said "all evidence now strongly indicates this accident resulted from an explosion in the air."

Patterson's statement said:

"Determination of responsibility for the accident is beyond the authority of United Air Lines alone. Federal and local officials are now working at the scene.

"United has retained the services of Charles Wilson, an outstanding authority in the field of explosives, who is affiliated with the crime laboratory of the State of Wisconsin. Experts from our own organization and the Douglas Co. are cooperating with all federal agencies in the most vigorous investigation. We will search out every possibility."

Prior to Patterson's statement, a United spokesman in Chicago had said: "Sabotage is not considered."

GOVERNMENT investigators meanwhile sought to determine whether "remedial action" was dictated by the disaster. It was the second in this area in less than four weeks and the fourth UAL crash on the same route in 10 years with a total loss of 180 lives.

Three top officials of the Civil Aeronautics Authority from Washington are now in Denver.

Bloodmobile Due; Columbus Warns Of Critical Need

Preparing for a visit by the bloodmobile next Friday, the Pickaway County chapter of the American Red Cross warned the public again that a shortage of blood is gradually becoming critical.

A telegram reminding the local chapter of this fact was received today from the Columbus regional blood center. Continuation of the blood shortage could lead to a sharp reduction in blood supplies to regional hospitals, including Berger Hospital.

The warning telegram told the local chapter:

"Unusually large number hemorrhage cases makes extremely urgent capacity collection all mobile units."

The bloodmobile will be in Circleville Friday at the Methodist Church from 10:30 a. m. to 4:30 p. m. To make an appointment, phone 336.

Whales Take Over Australian Beach

MELBOURNE, Fla. (AP) — The beach 11 miles south of Melbourne was no place to go swimming today. It was littered with 53 small whales weighing from 100 pounds to about a ton.

The mammals, known as pilot whales or blackfish, came ashore yesterday. One of the calves was placed back in the water four times but refused to stay there.

Pilot whales usually travel in schools and follow the largest male even when he leads them ashore. They are known to migrate from Greenland and the Norwegian coast to the Cape of Good Hope and are believed to go ashore because they dislike warm water.

Jaycees Hit CIO Proposal, Warn It Could Be 'Economic Suicide'

Officers and directors of the Circleville Jaycees were on record today with unanimous opposition to the CIO proposal to increase unemployment compensation benefits in Ohio.

The proposal will appear as issue No. 4 on the ballot at next Tuesday's elections. A statement issued by the Jaycees warned the voters that the plan amounts to "economic suicide."

One branch of the Circleville Chamber of Commerce, the newly organized transportation division, recently voted to oppose the CIO effort.

The Jaycee statement reviewed briefly how the proposal was launched and detailed the civic group's reasons for taking a stand in opposition.

* * *

THE STATEMENT, issued by Jaycee President Ed Webb, said in part:

"This proposal was introduced in the House of Representatives of the Ohio Legislature on January 10, 1955. This bill was referred to the House Labor and Industry Committee and two hearings were held. The committee declined to take action on it.

"The CIO is now going over the head of the Ohio Legislature and is placing the issue before the voters in this state.

"This proposal is to raise maximum unemployment benefits from $33 a week for 26 weeks to $59 a week for 39 weeks.

"The $59 a week for 39 weeks is wrong for two chief reasons. Although the burden would be borne by employers generally, it would be an unwarrantable burden, one that could not fail to damage the nation's economy in the long run.

"More serious still, such benefits would reduce even more the incentive for unemployed persons to go out and find new jobs.

* * *

"THIS PROPOSAL would mean an average $21 increased annual cost per employe for employes receiving $3,000 or more. For example, a firm employing 500 people would be saddled with an additional $10,500 cost each year.

"The law supposedly is written to prevent people from drawing unemployment pay if they are refusing jobs. But in practice, this is difficult to enforce.

"There are a lot of people in this or any other state who would rather draw this $59 a week TAX FREE for nine months than find another job.

"Many unthinking people may be tempted to vote for this measure, assuming that the unemployed are small minority. As of today, they are. But any recession could make this a fantastically expensive measure.

"Even those who may anticipate unemployment from time to time should recognize that as taxpayers they would have to help pay the bill.

"Ohio is a great industrial state but it will not keep in the front rank if the people vote for economic suicide.

"You, as taxpayers and voters cannot afford to let the CIO win this fight at the polls. . ."

Many Issues Face Voters In County

School Consolidation Proposal Stirs Many, For And Against

Proposed consolidation of Pickaway County's school districts tops the many county issues to be decided in Tuesday's elections.

The far-reaching proposal has been receiving vigorous support from the Pickaway County Citizens Committee, but there are many also in the local districts who are firmly opposed to the measure.

A 55 percent affirmative vote is necessary for merger of the school districts. If merger is approved, a 75 percent negative vote is required to exclude any one district from the consolidation.

Other issues to be decided are two school-expansion bonds, 10 tax levies, of which are renewals, and a "local option" to be decided in Ashville.

* * *

A $135,000 bond issue is proposed to construct a fireproof addition to the school at Saltcreek Township. This would be paid off in a maximum of 21 years, with an addition of a four-mill levy to the present county ten-mill levy.

A bond issue of $150,000 is up for decision in Scioto Township, to be used for construction of an addition to the school there. This would be paid off in 23 years with a levy of three mills.

A 55 percent affirmative vote is needed to approve the two levies.

Two county-wide tax levies, each for one-half of one-mill, needing a 60 percent majority vote for passage, are also on the ballot. One levy is to be used for current expenses and the other for welfare. Both are for two years.

Renewal of a one-mill cemetery levy for two years is on the ballot for New Holland. A 60 percent affirmative vote is necessary for passage.

A five-tenths of one-mill tax levy is proposed in Walnut Township, and a one-mill levy is up for decision in Darby Township. Walnut Township's levy is for three years, and Darby's for five. Funds will be used in both townships for their cemeteries. Sixty percent affirmative vote is needed for passage in both cases.

* * *

FIVE SCHOOL tax levies are also on the ballot. They are:

Harrison Township: added one-mill tax for five years.

Monroe: added one and one-half-mill tax for five years.

Saltcreek: renewal of two and seven-tenths-mill tax and increase of three-tenths of one-mill (total, three mills) for five years.

Jackson: Renewal of two and seven-tenths - mill tax and increase of one and three-tenths-mill (total, four-mills) for three years.

Walnut: renewal of one and eight-tenths-mill tax and increase of two-tenths (total, two mills) for three years.

* * *

A MAJORITY vote is required for passage of the school levies.

The "local option" issue to be decided in Ashville is in the form of five questions on a single ballot, all revolving about whether the sale of intoxicants should be permitted in the village.

Ohio University Given Emergency $75,000 Grant

COLUMBUS (AP)—The state controlling board yesterday granted a $75,000 emergency appropriation to Ohio University to provide more classroom facilities and expand food services.

The board acted on an option to purchase the property of the Athens Ice and Storage Co., adjacent to the university. The university plans to move its present service facilities to the ice plant, allowing the facility building to be used for industrial arts and engineering classes.

University officials said the move will allow the school to gear its operation toward the use of frozen foods instead of canned foods. The school now serves about 80,000 meals a week to 3,800 students.

Ohioans Start Return To Land

Parttime Farm Survey Outlined By Experts

COLUMBUS (AP) — More farm-born Ohioans are returning to the land as parttime farmers, say two rural sociologists at Ohio State University.

About half of these sell enough of their products to be classified as commercial farmers, according to H. R. Moore, an assistant professor, and William Wayt, an instructor in agriculture economics.

The two told the Ohio Bankers Assn. yesterday of their findings in a survey which covered 83 square miles and 14 counties in Ohio. The bankers met here for their annual one-day farm credit conference.

The picture of the average parttime farmer included these points:

He probably comes from a rural home, and there's a 50-50 chance his wife does, too.

His farm is about 25 miles from where he works, and he may have two cars.

He may produce farm products mainly for his family's use, but his average yearly sales amount to $1,800. Some produce enough for $10,000 worth of yearly sales.

* * *

HIS FARM averages about 57 acres and is worth roughly $15,000. This includes about $1,500 worth of equipment and $1,000 in livestock. He owes about $2,200.

He owns at least part of the land and he probably bought it.

He has probably held his dual role of farmer and job-holder for about 10 years.

Moore said, "there has been an appreciable increase in parttime farming in Ohio in the last five years."

He said the 40-hour work week and better roads and cars have contributed to the increase.

Earlier in the day a panel of OSU farm economists foresaw no unusual changes in 1956 farm prices.

Jerusalem Says Foe Is Expelled During Battle

Cairo Claims Enemy Suffers 200 Dead In Demilitarized Zone

JERUSALEM (AP) — The Israeli Foreign Ministry announced today that after hard fighting the "Egyptian invader" has been expelled from Israeli terirtory in the El Auja-Nizana demilitarized zone.

A military spokesman said 50 Egyptians had been killed and 40 captured in the fighting, described by observers as the heaviest between Israeli and Egyptian forces since the 1948 Palestine War.

Israeli casualties were reported as 4 killed and 19 wounded.

In Cairo, an Egyptian military spokesman said that in a successful counterattack Egyptian forces have reoccupied the El Sabha post in the El Auja demilitarized zone.

The spokesman said 200 Israeli soldiers were killed in the battle which started last night and "some others taken prisoner."

The U. N. chairman of the Israeli - Egyptian Mixed Armistice Commission, Francois Giaccomaggi, protested to Israeli authorities against detention of U. S. observers in the El Auja U. N. headquarters during the fighting.

* * *

HE SAID THE Israelis refused to let four observers and two radio operators leave the building, presumably at the time the Israeli forces were attacking El Sabha.

A report from Cairo said Egyptian army general headquarters has taken over command of Egyptian troops in the area from the Egyptian Palestine department, which previously controlled them. Gen. Abdel Hakim Amer, Egyptian commander in chief, has gone to the front.

The fighting centered around El Sabha, a checkport within Israeli territory which the Israelis claimed the Egyptians had occupied. The Israeli announcement said it has been reoccupied.

Army headquarters in Cairo said the Israelis had thrown 3,000 troops against 100 Egyptians at the El Sabha post.

The attack was supported by armored cars and heavy guns, the

This is National Flower Week. I'm not sure what that means but I prefer to think it means that we should all be kind to Flowers and not pick them. You see I have a soft spot in my head for Flowers, because when I was 8 times were tough back home, and my family had to move into an abandoned Greenhouse for a year. There wasn't much privacy and we got awful tired of smart-alecks telling us that "People who live in glass houses shouldn't take baths" but it was nice and warm and all of us children sure smelled pretty. Mama was very handy and managed to decorate the Greenhouse pretty good, but she never got it to looking like a real home because Father refused to give her the $5,000 she needed for curtains.

Ohio Solon Finds Russian Life 'Grim' But Not As Bad As Some May Believe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Life in Russia, according to Rep. Hays (D-Ohio), is "very grim indeed" by American standards but "not as bad as some might be led to believe."

After completing a one week tour of the Soviet Union, Hays said entering Germany was "like coming out of darkness into daylight."

As part of what he called the "grim" features of Soviet life, Hays mentioned in particular the housewives he said were constantly standing in line before state stores for food.

If these store sell out, he said, the women have to buy in the free market and pay the equivalent of: 90 cents a quart for milk, $3.50 a pound for meat; 30 cents a pound for potatoes; 30 cents a pound for carrots.

And the average Russian, he said, earns the equivalent of $150 to $200 a month.

On the other hand, Hays said he found Russians frequently showing a "restrained friendliness" and "a great patriotic feeling for their country."

A dairy farmer himself in eastern Ohio, Hays told of visiting a Russian collective farm. He called the farm "very, very average" by U. S. standards.

"The use of labor was extremely extravagant. Three women spent all day taking care of 10 cows each. The farm manager said his milk production averaged more than 7,000 pounds per cow annually.

"This is not too low. But when you consider that his was one of the best farms, it was low by American standards."

Hays said his biggest surprise was seeing a crowd of 200 to 300 Russians in Tula gathering around the 1955 car he was using.

"They asked the price of it and when they were told it was just under $2,000, they expressed amazement.

"A similar car in Russia of about the 1939 model costs $8,000."

Bloodmobile Due; Columbus Warns Of Critical Need

Preparing for a visit by the bloodmobile next Friday, the Pickaway County chapter of the American Red Cross warned the public again that a shortage of blood is gradually becoming critical.

A telegram reminding the local chapter of this fact was received today from the Columbus regional blood center. Continuation of the blood shortage could lead to a sharp reduction in blood supplies to regional hospitals, including Berger Hospital.

The warning telegram told the local chapter:

"Unusually large number hemorrhage cases makes extremely urgent capacity collection all mobile units."

The bloodmobile will be in Circleville Friday at the Methodist Church from 10:30 a. m. to 4:30 p. m. To make an appointment, phone 336.

Whales Take Over Australian Beach

MELBOURNE, Fla. (AP) — The beach 11 miles south of Melbourne was no place to go swimming today. It was littered with 53 small whales weighing from 100 pounds to about a ton.

The mammals, known as pilot whales or blackfish, came ashore yesterday. One of the calves was placed back in the water four times but refused to stay there.

Pilot whales usually travel in schools and follow the largest male even when he leads them ashore. They are known to migrate from Greenland and the Norwegian coast to the Cape of Good Hope and are believed to go ashore because they dislike warm water.

Lima Ford Plant Building Slated

LIMA (AP)—George Sheaf & Co., Inc., of Columbus plans to start sub-structure construction before the end of the year on the Ford Motor Co. $13 million engine plant here.

C. H. Patterson, general manager of Ford's engine and foundry division, said the Sheaf contract calls for about $2 million worth of work. Completion of the million-square-foot plant on a 270-acre site in Allen County is scheduled for 1957.

TWO CHICAGO MEN, Charles Driscoll, 19 (left) and Edward Kline, 30, were arrested in an abandoned farmhouse in Ladysmith, Wis., and returned to Chicago for questioning in the strangling of three boys. Jaycees Hit CIO Proposal, Warn It Could Be 'Economic Suicide'

Officers and directors of the Circleville Jaycees were on record today with unanimous opposition to the CIO proposal to increase unemployment compensation benefits in Ohio.

The proposal will appear as issue No. 4 on the ballot at next Tuesday's elections. A statement issued by the Jaycees warned the voters that the plan amounts to "economic suicide."

One branch of the Circleville Chamber of Commerce, the newly organized transportation division, recently voted to oppose the CIO effort.

The Jaycee statement reviewed briefly how the proposal was launched and detailed the civic group's reasons for taking a stand in opposition.

* * *

THE STATEMENT, issued by Jaycee President Ed Webb, said in part:

"This proposal was introduced in the House of Representatives of the Ohio Legislature on January 10, 1955. This bill was referred to the House Labor and Industry Committee and two hearings were held. The committee declined to take action on it.

"The CIO is now going over the head of the Ohio Legislature and is placing the issue before the voters in this state.

"This proposal is to raise maximum unemployment benefits from $33 a week for 26 weeks to $59 a week for 39 weeks.

"The $59 a week for 39 weeks is wrong for two chief reasons. Although the burden would be borne by employers generally, it would be an unwarrantable burden, one that could not fail to damage the nation's economy in the long run.

"More serious still, such benefits would reduce even more the incentive for unemployed persons to go out and find new jobs.

* * *

"THIS PROPOSAL would mean an average $21 increased annual cost per employe for employes receiving $3,000 or more. For example, a firm employing 500 people would be saddled with an additional $10,500 cost each year.

"The law supposedly is written to prevent people from drawing unemployment pay if they are refusing jobs. But in practice, this is difficult to enforce.

"There are a lot of people in this or any other state who would rather draw this $59 a week TAX FREE for nine months than find another job.

"Many unthinking people may be tempted to vote for this measure, assuming that the unemployed are small minority. As of today, they are. But any recession could make this a fantastically expensive measure.

"Even those who may anticipate unemployment from time to time should recognize that as taxpayers they would have to help pay the bill.

"Ohio is a great industrial state but it will not keep in the front rank if the people vote for economic suicide.

"You, as taxpayers and voters cannot afford to let the CIO win this fight at the polls. . ."

Many Issues Face Voters In County

School Consolidation Proposal Stirs Many, For And Against

Proposed consolidation of Pickaway County's school districts tops the many county issues to be decided in Tuesday's elections.

The far-reaching proposal has been receiving vigorous support from the Pickaway County Citizens Committee, but there are many also in the local districts who are firmly opposed to the measure.

A 55 percent affirmative vote is necessary for merger of the school districts. If merger is approved, a 75 percent negative vote is required to exclude any one district from the consolidation.

Other issues to be decided are two school-expansion bonds, 10 tax levies, of which are renewals, and a "local option" to be decided in Ashville.

* * *

A $135,000 bond issue is proposed to construct a fireproof addition to the school at Saltcreek Township. This would be paid off in a maximum of 21 years, with an addition of a four-mill levy to the present county ten-mill levy.

A bond issue of $150,000 is up for decision in Scioto Township, to be used for construction of an addition to the school there. This would be paid off in 23 years with a levy of three mills.

A 55 percent affirmative vote is needed to approve the two levies.

Two county-wide tax levies, each for one-half of one-mill, needing a 60 percent majority vote for passage, are also on the ballot. One levy is to be used for current expenses and the other for welfare. Both are for two years.

Renewal of a one-mill cemetery levy for two years is on the ballot for New Holland. A 60 percent affirmative vote is necessary for passage.

A five-tenths of one-mill tax levy is proposed in Walnut Township, and a one-mill levy is up for decision in Darby Township. Walnut Township's levy is for three years, and Darby's for five. Funds will be used in both townships for their cemeteries. Sixty percent affirmative vote is needed for passage in both cases.

* * *

FIVE SCHOOL tax levies are also on the ballot. They are:

Harrison Township: added one-mill tax for five years.

Monroe: added one and one-half-mill tax for five years.

Saltcreek: renewal of two and seven-tenths-mill tax and increase of three-tenths of one-mill (total, three mills) for five years.

Jackson: Renewal of two and seven - tenths - mill tax and increase of one and three-tenths-mill (total, four-mills) for three years.

Walnut: renewal of one and eight-tenths-mill tax and increase of two-tenths (total, two mills) for three years.

* * *

A MAJORITY vote is required for passage of the school levies.

The "local option" issue to be decided in Ashville is in the form of five questions on a single ballot, all revolving about whether the sale of intoxicants should be permitted in the village.

Ohio University Given Emergency $75,000 Grant

COLUMBUS (AP)—The state controlling board yesterday granted a $75,000 emergency appropriation to Ohio University to provide more classroom facilities and expand food services.

The board acted on an option to purchase the property of the Athens Ice and Storage Co., adjacent to the university. The university plans to move its present service facilities to the ice plant, allowing the facility building to be used for industrial arts and engineering classes.

University officials said the move will allow the school to gear its operation toward the use of frozen foods instead of canned foods. The school now serves about 80,000 meals a week to 3,800 students.

Ohioans Start Return To Land

Parttime Farm Survey Outlined By Experts

COLUMBUS (AP) — More farm-born Ohioans are returning to the land as parttime farmers, say two rural sociologists at Ohio State University.

About half of these sell enough of their products to be classified as commercial farmers, according to H. R. Moore, an assistant professor, and William Wayt, an instructor in agriculture economics.

The two told the Ohio Bankers Assn. yesterday of their findings in a survey which covered 83 square miles and 14 counties in Ohio. The bankers met here for their annual one-day farm credit conference.

The picture of the average part-time farmer included these points:

He probably comes from a rural home, and there's a 50-50 chance his wife does, too.

His farm is about 25 miles from where he works, and he may have two cars.

He may produce farm products mainly for his family's use, but his average yearly sales amount to $1,800. Some produce enough for $10,000 worth of yearly sales.

* * *

HIS FARM averages about 57 acres and is worth roughly $15,000. This includes about $1,500 worth of equipment and $1,000 in livestock. He owes about $2,200.

He owns at least part of the land and he probably bought it.

He has probably held his dual role of farmer and job-holder for about 10 years.

Moore said, "there has been an appreciable increase in parttime farming in Ohio in the last five years."

He said the 40-hour work week and better roads and cars have contributed to the increase.

Earlier in the day a panel of OSU farm economists foresaw no unusual changes in 1956 farm prices.

Jerusalem Says Foe Is Expelled During Battle

Cairo Claims Enemy Suffers 200 Dead In Demilitarized Zone

JERUSALEM (AP) — The Israeli Foreign Ministry announced today that after hard fighting the "Egyptian invader" has been expelled from Israeli teritory in the El Auja-Nizana demilitarized zone.

A military spokesman said 50 Egyptians had been killed and 40 captured in the fighting, described by observers as the heaviest between Israeli and Egyptian forces since the 1948 Palestine War.

Israeli casualties were reported as 4 killed and 19 wounded.

In Cairo, an Egyptian military spokesman said that in a successful counterattack Egyptian forces have reoccupied the El Sabha post in the El Auja demilitarized zone.

The spokesman said 200 Israeli soldiers were killed in the battle which started last night and "some others taken prisoner."

The U. N. chairman of the Israeli - Egyptian Mixed Armistice Commission, Francois Giaccomaggi, protested to Israeli authorities against detention of U. S. observers in the El Auja U. N. headquarters during the fighting.

* * *

HE SAID THE Israelis refused to let four observers and two radio operators leave the building, presumably at the time the Israeli forces were attacking El Sabha.

A report from Cairo said Egyptian army general headquarters has taken over command of Egyptian troops in the area from the Egyptian Palestine department, which previously controlled them. Gen. Abdel Hakim Amer, Egyptian commander in chief, has gone to the front.

The fighting centered around El Sabha, a checkport within Israeli territory which the Israelis claimed the Egyptians had occupied. The Israeli announcement said it has been reoccupied.

Army headquarters in Cairo said the Israelis had thrown 3,000 troops against 100 Egyptians at the El Sabha post.

The attack was supported by armored cars and heavy guns, the

"BUG WAVING IN BUTTERFLY ABOUT TO LAND ON LILY PAD"

This is National Flower Week. I'm not sure what that means but I prefer to think it means that we should all be kind to Flowers and not pick them. You see I have a soft spot in my head for Flowers, because when I was 8 times were tough back home, and my family had to move into an abandoned Greenhouse for a year. There wasn't much privacy and we got awful tired of smart-alecks telling us that "People who live in glass houses shouldn't take baths" but it was nice and warm and all of us children sure smelled pretty. Mama was very handy and managed to decorate the Greenhouse pretty good, but she never got it to looking like a real home because Father refused to give her the $5,000 she needed for curtains.

Ohio Solon Finds Russian Life 'Grim' But Not As Bad As Some May Believe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Life in Russia, according to Rep. Hays (D-Ohio), is "very grim indeed" by American standards but "not as bad as some might be led to believe."

After completing a one week tour of the Soviet Union, Hays said entering Germany was "like coming out of darkness into daylight."

As part of what he called the "grim" features of Soviet life, Hays mentioned in particular the housewives he said were constantly standing in line before state stores for food.

If these store sell out, he said, the women have to buy in the free market and pay the equivalent of: 90 cents a quart for milk, $3.50 a pound for meat; 30 cents a pound for potatoes; 30 cents a pound for carrots.

And the average Russian, he said, earns the equivalent of $150 to $200 a month.

On the other hand, Hays said he found Russians frequently showing a "restrained friendliness" and "a great patriotic feeling for their country."

A dairy farmer himself in eastern Ohio, Hays told of visiting a Russian collective farm. He called the farm "very, very average" by U. S. standards.

"The use of labor was extremely extravagant. Three women spent all day taking care of 10 cows each. The farm manager said his milk production averaged more than 7,000 pounds per cow annually.

"This is not too low. But when you consider that his was one of the best farms, it was low by American standards."

Hays said his biggest surprise was seeing a crowd of 200 to 300 Russians in Tula gathering around the 1955 car he was using.

"They asked the price of it and when they were told it was just under $2,000, they expressed amazement.

"A similar car in Russia of about the 1939 model costs $8,000."

Jerusalem Says Foe Is Expelled During Battle

Egyptian communique said. It said the battle lasted seven hours, but at another point referred to it as "still going on."

Military reports reaching official sources in Cairo said the Egyptians launched a counterattack in the Sabha area. An Egyptian spokesman said the Egyptians have "considerable military strength" in the region, but declined to give details on the counterattack.

The spokesman said that while the battle was raging in the demilitarized zone, Israeli forces opened fire with automatic weapons on an Egyptian outpost near Maghazi, a camp for Palestine Arab refugees south of Gaza, 50 miles north of El Auga.

The spokesman said the Egyptians silenced the Israeli fire at Maghazi within a half hour. No Egyptian casualties were reported.

The fighting came less than 24 hours after Premier David Ben-Gurion resumed the helm of the Israeli government with a call for immediate face-to-face talks with Arab state leaders to end the almost continuous and increasingly dangerous strife.

In Cairo, a political commentator declared that "hardly within 10 hours after Israeli Premier David Ben-Gurion's peace offer, large Israeli forces attacked Egyptian positions and occupied a large area of the El Auja demilitarized zone. If Ben-Gurion were sincere, such an attack would not have taken place. It is very clear now he wants to deceive the world."

There have been repeated clashes in the demiliterized zone area in recent weeks, each side accusing the other of taking up positions within the zone illegally. U. N. truce observers have made vigorous efforts to restore peace, calling on both Israel and Egypt to pull their forces out of the zone.

* * *

THE ISRAELIS claimed they pulled out but that the Egyptians retained certain strong points. The Egyptians countered by claiming that what the Israelis claimed were border police within the zone actually were Israeli army units.

Last Sunday Canadian Maj. Gen. E. L. M. Burns, U. N. truce supervisors' chief, supported by U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold, warned that offensive action by either side "may result in the gravest consequences."

A spokesman for the Israeli Foreign Ministry here said the "action by the Israel defense army is aimed at the expulsion of Egyptian forces from Israel territoy."

Ben-Gurion told parliament yesterday "Israel is ready for a lasting and enduring peace settlement and for long-term political, economic and cultural cooperation between Israel and its neighbors."

In Cairo, Arab League sources called Ben - Gurion's approach "useless."

Ike Increases Work On New Legislation

14 Proposed Changes In Taft-Hartley To Be Sought Once More

DENVER (AP) — President Eisenhower, still gaining physical strength, today continued drafting a legislative program on which his party will run next year.

The Taft-Hartley Act was added to the growing list of controversial issues with which he will confront the Democratic-controlled Congress in January. The action came during a huddle yesterday with Secretary of Labor Mitchell.

Mitchell told a news conference afterward the President will resubmit the 14 proposed Taft-Hartley amendments previously rejected by Congress even though Mitchell said "I don't feel that any action is going to be taken by Congress."

The President, moving further along the road to recovery, eased up on his official schedule today to devote more time to planning for a period of convalesence, recreation and rehabilitation at his Gettysburg, Pa., farm.

He plans to leave here a week from Friday, spend a day or two at the White House, and then proceed to Gettysburg to which the temporary White House will be shifted in advance of Mamie's 59th birthday, Nov. 14.

* * *

THE TENTATIVE Nov. 11 departure date from Denver will be made firm over the weekend if Dr. Paul Dudley White, the eminent Boston heart specialist, approves. White is returning for another of his fortnightly examinations of the President.

The President is now walking freely about the eighth floor of the hospital.

Eisenhowar spent some time on the hospital sundeck yesterday working on a painting of his 7-year-old grandson, David.

Like other Cabinet visitors, Mitchell said he didn't learn a thing on the big question whether Eisenhower will run again.

But he did get the President's approval for a half a dozen items of labor legislation and his sanction for another try at amending Taft-Hartley.

These amendments hold the prospects for election year partisan debate just as does another issue the President marked for submission to Congress when Secretary of Agriculture Benson visited him last week.

He gave 100 per cent backing to Benson's agricultural policies, including the flexible price support program which has been the target of bitter criticism.

In his State of the Union message last January the President laid heaviest emphasis on two of the proposed amendments. In one, the non-Communist oath now required of union leaders would also be asked of management officials. The other would prohibit representation elections demanded by an employer for six months after a strike starts. The latter was aimed at erasing a potential "union busting" aspect of the law.

Looks Like It Will Be Cold Novembrrrrrr

CHICAGO (AP) — There was a touch of wintry weather, snow and cold, over the midcontinent today.

The first snow of the season fell in many parts of the Midwest, with three inches reported in northern Illinois, and from one to two inches in Chicago.

Temperatures edged to near zero in some northern Midwest areas. Readings in the 'teens extended southward over the Dakotas into Nebraska. The freezing line covered sections from the eastern part of Lake Superior southward to northwest Indiana and southwest into Central Oklahoma, across the Rockies, over most of Nevada and northeastward into central Montana. Brisk northerly winds whipped many areas.

The wet belt during the night extended from the central Gulf Coast up the Mississippi Valley and over the eastern Great Lakes region. Snow fell southward to Indianapolis and rain mixed with snow fell in Michigan. The snow was reported as far south as Springfield, Ill.

A new storm from the Pacific spread rain and snow over the Northwest States. Two to four inches of snow fell in the mountain regions of Washington.

Morning temperatures ranged from 73 in Bronsville, Tex., to 8 above in Dickinson, N. D.

Prelate Denies Pressure Used On Princess

LONDON (AP) — The archbishop of Canterbury denied last night that the Church of England brought pressure on Princess Margaret to give up Peter Townsend.

The archbishop, Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, ranking prelate of the Angelican Church, made his statement on a televisin program of the government-sponsored British Broadcasting Corp. He broke his silence on the Margaret-Townsend romance, terminated by the Princess because of an Anglican ban.

The archbishop has repeatedly stated that the church does not countenance the remarriage of divorced persons whose former spouses are living.

Townsend, a Royal Air Force group captain, divorced his wife in 1952 on grounds of adultery.

Margaret's announcement Monday that she had decided not to marry Townsend came four days after she had a private 50-minute interviewed with the archbishop.

Commentor Richard Dimbleby said during the TV show that some people regard the church as timid in its attitude toward divorce.

"Timid?" asked the archbishop. "We are fighting against a great popular wave of stupid emotion, and we are winning the battle."

Faure Victor In French Vote

PARIS (AP)—The French National Assembly early today voted 330-211 in favor of holding new general elections next month, but a cloud of parliamentary confusion hung over the future of the plan.

Endorsement of the government's bill to end the present Assembly Jan. 2, thus advancing the elections from June, came on a vote of confidence for Premier Edgar Faure.

Some observers believed the Senate would take up the question as soon as it returns to work Tuesday.

Others are convinced the Senate will insist on taking plenty of time.

Faure insists that early elections are necessary because important decisions, especially concerning North Africa, must be taken in the first half of 1956.

Police Report Complaints On Young Cyclists

Police Chief Elmer Merriman said today he would check into complaints that school children have been driving their bikes in a reckless manner.

Several complaints have reached The Herald and police that cyclists around the Circleville High School area have been "whizzing" up and down Court St., disregarding stop signs and traffic lights. There have been instances reported in which bikes have nearly "run down" pedestrians.

Chief Merriman said he knows of one incident in which a cyclist apparently could not wait for a traffic light to turn green. The cyclist, going North on Court St., came to the light at the intersection of Franklin St. Seeing the light red, he "whipped around" into a filling station and came out on the green side of the light, turned, and continued up Court St.

"That boy was driving in a very reckless way," the chief said. "We're just going to have to start pulling some of these kids in. If they think we don't mean business, let them look at what has happened recently in Juvenile Court here." (Several important convictions have taken place in that court within the past few weeks.)

"Maybe the schools could cooperate with us and warn their students about driving bikes recklessly. It sure would help. We just can't be every place at once with the few men we have."

West Pressuring Soviets To OK German Unification

GENEVA (AP)—The West brought the heaviest pressure on V. M. Molotov today to accept the unification of Germany through free election even though that would mean scrapping the Communist regime in East Germany.

But nothing that the Soviet foreign minister has said at this Big Four conference has indicated he would budge on this issue.

The only agreement that appears remotely possible at this foreign ministers' conference is a broad statement that German unification would be a good thing and that the four powers will continue to negotiate on it.

Even though the basic conditions remain unchanged, this would permit both East and West to claim the conference was not a failure.

Should such an agreement be reached, U.S. Secretary of State Dulles, British Foreign Secretary Macmillan and French Foreign Minister Pinay could be expected to agree to continue parallel negotiations on a European security treaty which the Soviet wants.

Dulles yesterday developed the point that Russian and Western proposals on security already have certain similarities.

* * *

BUT THE BASIC difference remains unresolved—whether a European security treaty should be made to cover a divided Germany or a reunified but neutralized Germany (either one of which would suit Russia), or a reunified Germany allied with the West.

The Western pressure on Molotov for concessions on Germany grows out of apparent concessins which Dulles said Molotov had made on security.

The Western argument is: Russia's opposition to a unified Germany allied with the West has been based on the fear that such a Germany would be a threat to Soviet security, but now it turns out that Molotov's ideas on European security are not so far apart from the ideas of the Western ministers. Therefore, Molotov's opposition to reunification on security grounds no longer is valid, the West contends.

Molotov, however, gave no indication yesterday of weakening under this argument. He ridiculed the idea of a reunified Germany allied with the West would provide any "security guarantees to the Soviet Union."

Ohio Tightening Rules On Temporary Drivers' Licenses

COLUMBUS (AP)—Highway Safety Director U. C. Felty today announced a major change in the issuance of drivers' licenses to new motorists.

He said that effective Nov. 15, all driver license applicants in Franklin County will be required to undergo a vision check and written examination prior to being issued a temporary permit.

Felty said the new system will expand to the entire state once a smooth working procedure is established in Franklin County.

Felty said the test prior to issuance of a temporary permit will eliminate many potentially unsafe drivers, because examiners will discover applicants who lack sufficient knowledge of traffic laws or who have poor vision.

Pumpkin Show Officials Sked December Meet

Circleville's Pumpkin Show Board will meet early in December to review this year's show and to plan for the event's 50th anniversary, coming up next year.

Bob Colville, treasurer and spokesman for the group and often referred to as "Mr. Pumpkin Show", said the board has several innovations already under consideration for the 1956 event. He added that "something definite may be decided at this meeting."

Among the suggestions already in the wind are: a horse-drawn carriage parade with no motorized vehicles permitted, to recreate the original Pumpkin Shows; invitations to famous celebrities, including Ted Lewis and Polly Bergen; television coverage of the events; inviting all the Miss Pumpkin and Little Miss Pumpkin Shows back for a special Queens' Parade.

One idea which Colville opposes is one to lengthen the Pumpkin Show to five or six days for the special celebration. He pointed out that "crowds will come for two or three days but not more than that. If we stretch the show out to six days we will just lose our crowd."

Colville said that the main theme may very well be contrasting the early Pumpkin Shows with the latest ones, showing how things have changed since the early 1900's when the first Pumpkin Show was held. (He reminded that this will not be the 50th consecutive year the show has been held. Two world wars briefly interrupted the shows here.)

Jerusalem Says Foe Is Expelled During Battle

Egyptian communique said. It said the battle lasted seven hours, but at another point referred to it as "still going on."

Military reports reaching official sources in Cairo said the Egyptians launched a counterattack in the Sabha area. An Egyptian spokesman said the Egyptians have "considerable military strength" in the region, but declined to give details on the counterattack.

The spokesman said that while the battle was raging in the demilitarized zone, Israeli forces opened fire with automatic weapons on an Egyptian outpost near Maghazi, a camp for Palestine Arab refugees south of Gaza, 50 miles north of El Auga.

The spokesman said the Egyptians silenced the Israeli fire at Maghazi within a half hour. No Egyptian casualties were reported.

The fighting came less than 24 hours after Premier David Ben-Gurion resumed the helm of the Israeli government with a call for immediate face-to-face talks with Arab state leaders to end the almost continuous and increasingly dangerous strife.

In Cairo, a political commentator declared that "hardly within 10 hours after Israeli, Premier David Ben-Gurion's peace offer, large Israeli forces attacked Egyptian positions and occupied a large area of the El Auja demilitarized zone. If Ben-Gurion were sincere, such an attack would not have taken place. It is very clear now he wants to deceive the world."

There have been repeated clashes in the demiliterized zone area in recent weeks, each side accusing the other of taking up positions within the zone illegally. U. N. truce observers have made vigorous efforts to restore peace, calling on both Israel and Egypt to pull their forces out of the zone.

* * *

THE ISRAELIS claimed they pulled out but that the Egyptians retained certain strong points. The Egyptians countered by claiming that what the Israelis claimed were border police within the zone actually were Israeli army units.

Last Sunday Canadian Maj. Gen. E. L. M. Burns, U. N. truce supervisors' chief, supported by U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold, warned that offensive action by either side "may result in the gravest consequences."

A spokesman for the Israeli Foreign Ministry here said the "action by the Israel defense army is aimed at the expulsion of Egyptian forces from Israel territoy."

Ben-Gurion told parliament yesterday "Israel is ready for a lasting and enduring peace settlement and for long-term political, economic and cultural cooperation between Israel and its neighbors."

In Cairo, Arab League sources called Ben - Gurion's approach "useless."

Woodward Case Up To Grand Jury

MINEOLA, N. Y. (AP) — Nassau County Dist. Atty. Frank A. Gulotta says the November grand jury must decide whether Mrs. William Woodward Jr. should be required to reenact the shotgun killing of her husband.

Woodward, 35-year-old socialite and turfman, was shot to death early Sunday in the dark hallway of his Oyster Bay home by a blast from a shotgun wielded by his blonde wife, Ann, 39.

Mrs. Woodward has told police she fired in panic outside her bedroom door after being awakened by what might have been the barking of the family dog. Reports of a prowler in the fashionable neighborhood caused the couple, who occupied separate bedrooms, to keep guns by their beds for protection.

Ike Increases Work On New Legislation

14 Proposed Changes In Taft-Hartley To Be Sought Once More

DENVER (AP) — President Eisenhower, still gaining physical strength, today continued drafting a legislative program on which his party will run next year.

The Taft-Hartley Act was added to the growing list of controversial issues with which he will confront the Democratic-controlled Congress in January. The action came during a huddle yesterday with Secretary of Labor Mitchell.

Mitchell told a news conference afterward the President will resubmit the 14 proposed Taft-Hartley amendments previously rejected by Congress even though Mitchell said "I don't feel that any action is going to be taken by Congress."

The President, moving further along the road to recovery, eased up on his official schedule today to devote more time to planning for a period of convalesence, recreation and rehabilitation at his Gettysburg, Pa., farm.

He plans to leave here a week from Friday, spend a day or two at the White House, and then proceed to Gettysburg to which the temporary White House will be shifted in advance of Mamie's 59th birthday, Nov. 14.

* * *

THE TENTATIVE Nov. 11 departure date from Denver will be made firm over the weekend if Dr. Paul Dudley White, the eminent Boston heart specialist, approves. White is returning for another of his fortnightly examinations of the President.

The President is now walking freely about the eighth floor of the hospital.

Eisenhower spent some time on the hospital sundeck yesterday working on a painting of his 7-year-old grandson, David.

Like other Cabinet visitors, Mitchell said he didn't learn a thing on the big question whether Eisenhower will run again.

But he did get the President's approval for a half a dozen items of labor legislation and his sanction for another try at amending Taft-Hartley.

These amendments hold the prospects for election year partisan debate just as does another issue the President marked for submission to Congress when Secretary of Agriculture Benson visited him last week.

He gave 100 per cent backing to Benson's agricultural policies, including the flexible price support program which has been the target of bitter criticism.

In his State of the Union message last January the President laid heaviest emphasis on two of the proposed amendments. In one, the non-Communist oath now required of union leaders would also be asked of management officials. The other would prohibit representation elections demanded by an employer for six months after a strike starts. The latter was aimed at erasing a potential "union busting" aspect of the law.

Looks Like It Will Be Cold Novembrrrrrr

CHICAGO (AP) — There was a touch of wintry weather, snow and cold, over the midcontinent today.

The first snow of the season fell in many parts of the Midwest, with three inches reported in northern Illinois, and from one to two inches in Chicago.

Temperatures edged to near zero in some northern Midwest areas. Readings in the 'teens extended southward over the Dakotas into Nebraska. The freezing line covered sections from the eastern part of Lake Superior southward to northwest Indiana and southwest into Central Oklahoma, across the Rockies, over most of Nevada and northeastward into central Montana. Brisk northerly winds whipped many areas.

The wet belt during the night extended from the central Gulf Coast up the Mississippi Valley and over the eastern Great Lakes region. Snow fell southward to Indianapolis and rain mixed with snow fell in Michigan. The snow was reported as far south as Springfield, Ill.

A new storm from the Pacific spread rain and snow over the Northwest States. Two to four inches of snow fell in the mountain regions of Washington.

Morning temperatures ranged from 73 in Bronsville, Tex., to 8 above in Dickinson, N. D.

Prelate Denies Pressure Used On Princess

LONDON (AP) — The archbishop of Canterbury denied last night that the Church of England brought pressure on Princess Margaret to give up Peter Townsend.

The archbishop, Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, ranking prelate of the Anglican Church, made his statement on a televisin program of the government-sponsored British Broadcasting Corp. He broke his silence on the Margaret-Townsend romance, terminated by the Princess because of an Anglican ban.

The archbishop has repeatedly stated that the church does not countenance the remarriage of divorced persons whose former spouses are living.

Townsend, a Royal Air Force group captain, divorced his wife in 1952 on grounds of adultery.

Margaret's announcement Monday that she had decided not to marry Townsend came four days after she had a private 50-minute interviewed with the archbishop.

Commentor Richard Dimbleby said during the TV show that some people regard the church as timid in its attitude toward divorce.

"Timid?" asked the archbishop. "We are fighting against a great popular wave of stupid emotion, and we are winning the battle."

Faure Victor In French Vote

PARIS (AP)—The French National Assembly early today voted 330-211 in favor of holding new general elections next month, but a cloud of parliamentary confusion hung over the future of the plan.

Endorsement of the government's bill to end the present Assembly Jan. 2, thus advancing the elections from June, came on a vote of confidence for Premier Edgar Faure.

Some observers believed the Senate would take up the question as soon as it returns to work Tuesday.

Others are convinced the Senate will insist on taking plenty of time.

Faure insists that early elections are necessary because important decisions, especially concerning North Africa, must be taken in the first half of 1956.

Sewage Treatment Plants On Increase

CINCINNATI (AP) — Construction has begun on 20 new sewage treatment plants in Pennsylvania. West Virginia, Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky, the Ohio River Valley Water Sanitation Commission reports.

Edward J. Cleary, executive director, in making the report, said "More than lip service is being given to our clean streams campaign."

Cleary said that of all the major cities on the Ohio River, only Louisville has not yet started construction on treatment works.

High Court Ends Gas Rate Dispute

COLUMBUS (AP) — The State Supreme Court today wrote an end to long litigation over gas rate increases in eastern Ohio.

The court dismissed an appeal from increases granted by the Ohio Public Utilities Commission to Natural Gas Co. of West Virginia in Alliance and vicinity.

The commission originally allowed the company emergency increases in Alliance of $272,260 and of $547,422 in its other territory.

Later, the commission cut $50,260 from the increase allowed in Alliance and cut $80,422 from the boost granted for the rest of the firm's territory. The company appealed the cuts and Alliance objected to remaining increase.

HST Takes Formal Bow As An Author

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Harry S. Truman made his formal debut as an author yesterday against a background of flowers, television cameras and strains of the Missouri Waltz.

More than 500 persons were in the Grand Ballroom of the Muehlebach Hotel when the former President came in for the autographing party for his memoirs, "Year of Decisions."

Inscribing only his name on the flyleaf, he was able to handle a customer every six seconds for the first hour.

Three lines of customers wound around the big ball room and far out into the lobby. Some were carrying as many as six books.

Famed Cornet Player Feels Jazz Unworthy

A famed cornetist, currently participating in a religious musical program at the Evangelical United Brethren Church in Ashville, has given his own views on the widely-debated question of jazz music.

Prof. J. R. MacMurray, one-time chautauqua and lyceum headliner and now rated one of the nation's top cornet players, voiced a stand in direct opposition to those who claim true beauty can be found in "jazz". He said:

"Jazz music has no part in my life, because of its degrading influence upon the character of the rank and file. On the other hand, sacred music, inspired of God, tends naturally to lift the soul, mind and body."

MacMurray for 30 years has devoted his musical studies to the sacred repertoire, conducting musical revivals for Protestant denominations all over the nation.

* * *

HE AND his wife will be at the Ashville EUB Church through Sunday. Then, beginning next Tuesday evening, the Musical MacMurrays will conduct their second revival program at the First EUB Church in Circleville.

Mr. and Mrs. MacMurray are the son-in-law and daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. O. F. Gibbs of Circleville.

Sunday evening, at 7:45, the MacMurrays will climax their Ashville convocation with a musical drama, "The Lost Sheep." Prior to that time they will offer a musical program at the Boys Industrial School in Lancaster.

Slayer Of Children Judged As Insane

STEUBENVILLE (AP) — Three judges agreed here yesterday that Frank Holt, 36, was innocent by reason of insanity in the crowbar killing of his five small children Dec. 9, 1953.

The judges ordered the East Springfield miner returned to Lima State Hospital for the Criminal Insane for re-examination. The Lima institution released Holt last July with the finding he was sane enough to stand trial.

On the panel were Judges Arthur L. Hooper and John J. Griesinger of Jefferson County and Clifford Beld of Belmont County.

Stations Accused Of News Pirating

WASHINGTON (AP) — Charges of news pirating brought by two newspapers against Ohio radio stations WMAN, Mansfield, and WEOL, Elyri, have brought public hearings by the Federal Communications Commission.

FCC will review its recent renewal of licenses for the two stations. The Mansfield renewal was protested by the Mansfield Journal and the one in Elyria by the Lorain Journal.

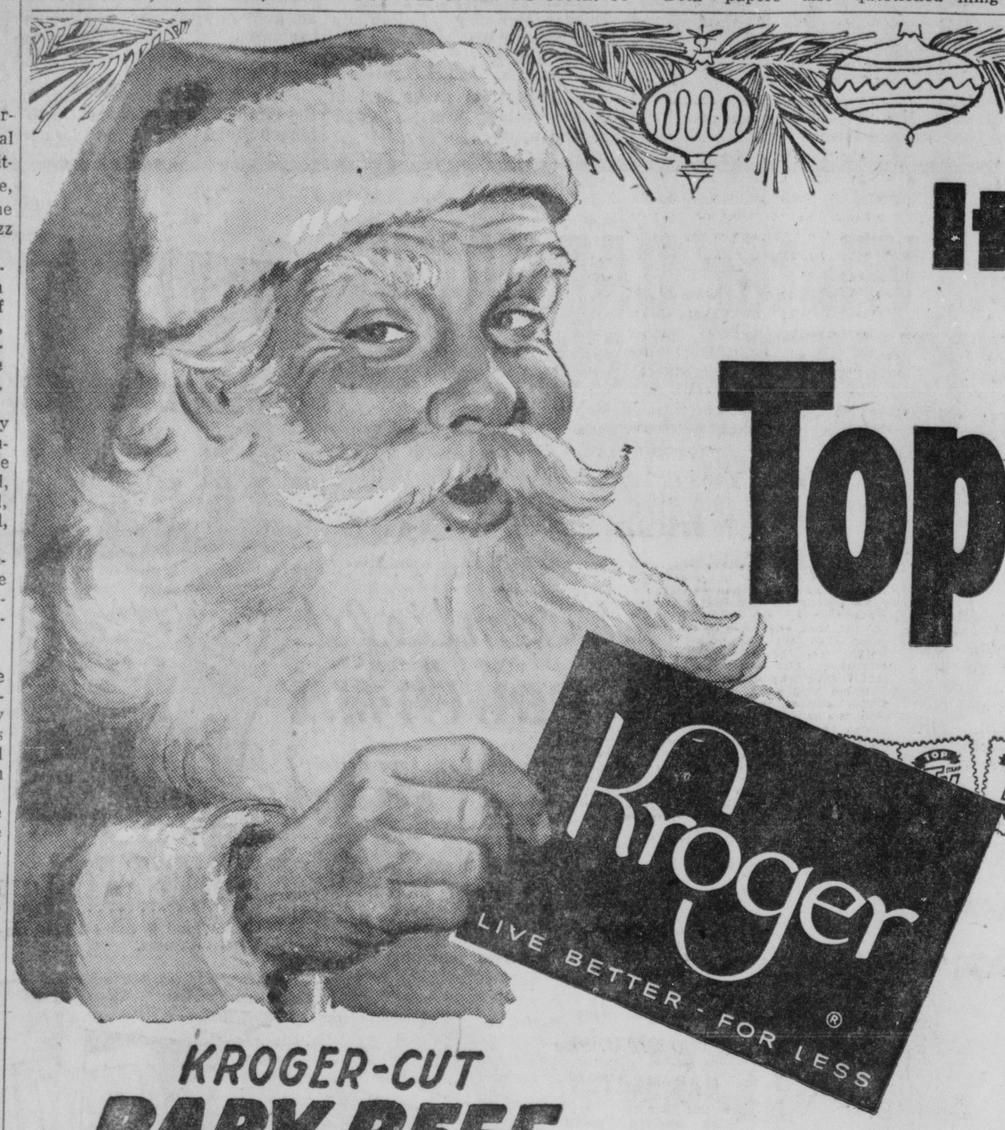

Both papers also questioned whether the stations' programming fulfilled FCC commitments.

Enginemen Warn Pennsy Of Strike

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen has notified the Pennsylvania Railroad a strike would be called by 8,000 members of the union employed in operating jobs on the PRR.

The brotherhood said its president, H. E. Gilbert, of Cleveland, would be instructed to set a date for the walkout.

The strike, the union spokesman said, was decided on because of the railroad's "failure to conduct negotiations on 585 unsettled personnel cases in keeping with the provisions of the Railroad Act."

Famed Cornet Player Feels Jazz Unworthy

A famed cornetist, currently participating in a religious musical program at the Evangelical United Brethren Church in Ashville, has given his own views on the widely-debated question of jazz music.

Prof. J. R. MacMurray, one-time chautauqua and lyceum headliner and now rated one of the nation's top cornet players, voiced a stand in direct opposition to those who claim true beauty can be found in "jazz". He said:

"Jazz music has no part in my life, because of its degrading influence upon the character of the rank and file. On the other hand, sacred music, inspired of God, tends naturally to lift the soul, mind and body."

MacMurray for 30 years has devoted his musical studies to the sacred repertoire, conducting musical revivals for Protestant denominations all over the nation.

* * *

HE AND his wife will be at the Ashville EUB Church through Sunday. Then, beginning next Tuesday evening, the Musical MacMurrays will conduct their second revival program at the First EUB Church in Circleville.

Mr. and Mrs. MacMurray are the son-in-law and daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. O. F. Gibbs of Circleville.

Sunday evening, at 7:45, the MacMurrays will climax their Ashville convocation with a musical drama, "The Lost Sheep." Prior to that time they will offer a musical program at the Boys Industrial School in Lancaster.

Slayer Of Children Judged As Insane

STEUBENVILLE (AP) — Three judges agreed here yesterday that Frank Holt, 36, was innocent by reason of insanity in the crowbar killing of his five small children Dec. 9, 1953.

The judges ordered the East Springfield miner returned to Lima State Hospital for the Criminal Insane for re-examination. The Lima institution released Holt last July with the finding he was sane enough to stand trial.

On the panel were Judges Arthur L. Hooper and John J. Griesinger of Jefferson County and Clifford Beld of Belmont County.

Stations Accused Of News Pirating

WASHINGTON (AP) — Charges of news pirating brought by two newspapers against Ohio radio stations WMAN, Mansfield, and WEOL, Elyri, have brought public hearings by the Federal Communications Commission.

FCC will review its recent renewal of licenses for the two stations. The Mansfield renewal was protested by the Mansfield Journal and the one in Elyria by the Lorain Journal.

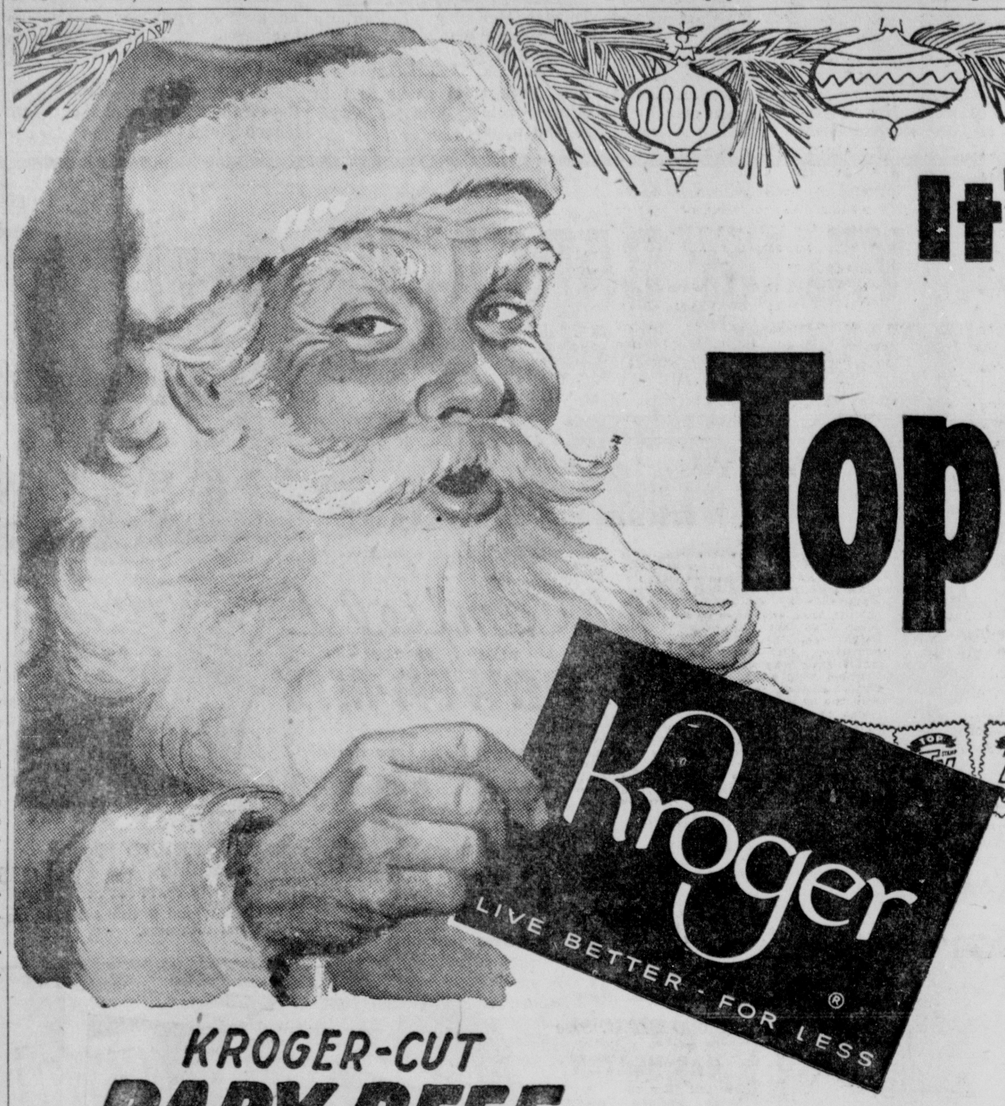

Both papers also questioned whether the stations' programming fulfilled FCC commitments.

Enginemen Warn Pennsy Of Strike

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen has notified the Pennsylvania Railroad a strike would be called by 8,000 members of the union employed in operating jobs on the PRR.

The brotherhood said its president, H. E. Gilbert, of Cleveland, would be instructed to set a date for the walkout.

The strike, the union spokesman said, was decided on because of the railroad's "failure to conduct negotiations on 585 unsettled personnel cases in keeping with the provisions of the Railroad Act."

Roundtown Retrospect

By Mac Noggle

Did you know that the sister of Commodore Perry, hero of the Battle of Lake Erie, lived in Pickaway County for many years?

Mary Perry was born in 1773 in Lewiston, Delaware; her dad was Captain Chrisopher Perry of Revolutionary War fame and a very close friend of General George Washington. Miss Perry married William Colter and, in 1806 ,with their two sons, they moved to this county, at which time the site of Circleville had but one house, and that was a very crude log cabin.

Early accounts of this family disclose that the trip from Delaware to Ohio was long and tedious. They started with a horse and wagon, but the horse died when 60 miles from Circleville, so they were forced to buy a wheelbarrow to haul the two children the rest of the trip and carry their worldly goods, strapped to their backs. Mr. Colter died shortly after their arrival here and in time Mrs. Colter married John Beneman.

The story goes on to say that the Indians gave them very little trouble, but the wolves and the wildcats were everywhere, and they were forced to build fires around the house every night to keep them at a distance.

* * *

DON'T YOU often wonder why our pioneers left old friends and very comfortable living conditions and endured all the hardships in getting here and then settled down in this wilderness and apparently enjoyed such a life? Some, who came, were not hardy people, but it did not take them long to become either pretty husky, or they couldn't take it at all.

After the war for independence, all the pathways to Ohio were crowded with men, women, children, dogs and what little posessions they could carry — crossing perilous mountains and enduring hardships for which they were not physically prepared. But they were on their way—so they had been told — to a country where nothing prevented them from picking where their home would be and that there would be a living furnished without money or price.

They had heard the glowing accounts of the land "flowing with milk and honey,"i t was a country, fertile as heart could wish,"—"fair to look upon and fragrant with the thousand fresh odors of the woods in early spring." "Swift deer bounded by, unmolested and unscared by the sound of the woodman's ax or of a rifle." "The plains were not only covered with tall grases, but were jewelled with strange and brilliant flowers."

Most of the families who came into this region, walked all of the way and over trails—some merely marked by gashes in tree trunks, while others were Indian trails which before had been a favorite, well-worn route for the herds of buffalo.

"It must be remembered there were no bridges then, so if places shallow enough to ford were not found, it meant swimming the stream. Many times, days and even weeks of delay were endured —waiting until swollen streams subsided, so that a crossing was reasonably safe.

Many lives were lost by drowning, because impatience drove some to take chances with flood waters. Oftimes bogs or swamps gave as much trouble as flood waters. Here, quite often, logs had to be cut and laid across the road or trail so that the caravan could make a crossing to solid footing.

Many of the folks — especially those from the New England area —who settled Pickaway County, came by the northern route, crossing the fairly level New York state to the Niagara frontier and from there, either by water on Lake Erie, or they travelled along the level shore line.

* * *

THE EASTERN part of Pickaway County was settled principallay by people from Pennsylvonis, who had a rugged trip, crossing the mountains, but on reaching Pittsburgh, most of them built rafts, on which were placed the family, what household goods and livestock they brought along, and leisurely and probably restfully floated down the Ohio to a landing nearest to where they were bound.

Those who came from Virginia—and many of Pickaway County's early settlers, especially those on the west side of the river, were Virginians—had some pretty rugged country to conquer before they reached Ohio. Those of you who have driven routes 40 or 50 know the nature of the landscape through which these highways wind. Even today, it's a pretty tough trip with the modern auto and on paved roads.

Not all, but many of our first settlers, who came to Ohio, were God's homeless poor. A great many had served for the cause of independence and had been honorably discharged—but without pay. Some accepted pay in wild lands on which they established homes and as they increased in numbers, became a powerful people. We believe their lives were happy.

They lived to a good old age—had large families and truly appreciated that this was a land of peace and plenty. These and their descendants were the "Squirrel Hunters" of history.

Ike Asks For One Drink Of Whisky

DENVER (AP) — News secretary James C. Hagerty says the President has had one drink of whisky since he was hospitalized following his heart attack Sept. 24.

"He had a weak scotch and soda one night last week before dinner," Hagerty said.

"Was that for medical purposes,' a reporter asked.

"No," Hagerty replied. "He wanted it."

Newspaper Publishers Deny Accusation By Government

NEW YORK (AP)—The American Newspaper Publishers Assn. (ANPA) has filed a brief in federal court denying government allegations that it conspired to allocate newspaper advertising to a selected group of advertising agencies in violation of antitrust laws.

The APA denies that it or any one authorized to act for it is engaged in a conspiracy in restraint of trade, or that it intended to do so by any of its actions.

The publisher group, which filed the brief Tuesday, asked Judge William B. Herlands to dismiss the case.

The government cited five other defendants with the ANPA last May. They are the American Assn. of Advertising Agencies, the Publishers Assn. of New York City, the Periodical Publishers Assn., Associated Business Papers and the Agricultural Publishers Assn.

In addition to the ANPA's brief, the Publishers Assn. of New York City also filed an answer to the suit in which it denied the government's allegations.

At the request of the other four defendants, they were granted a 90-day extension in which to make replies.

The ANPA answer said it has a right to gather and disseminate to its members credit information on any one placing ads in daily newspapers. This astivity, according to the government's complaint, was designed to restrict the placing of ads to a selected group of advertising agencies.

Denying this allegation, the ANPA said the information gathered and disseminated to members "Is normally and reasonably ancillary to the lawful and main purpose of its credit information and credit rating service." The ANPA said further that this information is confidential and is for use by its members "in the exercise of their individual business discreton."

The ANPA said publishers alone have the right to determine what appears in their papers and the association has no rules or bylaws regulating the dealings of its members with advertisers and advertising agencies.

The ANPA said it has sought consistently over the years to assist advertising gencies rather than to restrain them. More than 1,000 agencies now have credit ratings fixed by the ANPA, with their capital ranging from as little as $5,000 up to more than $1,000,000, the ANPA answer added. The ANPA said this list is not a "frozen" one—as alleged by the government—but a fluid one changing from time to time.

Aeronca Firm Buys More Land

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio (AP) — The Aeronca Manufacturing Corp., yesterday completed purchase of a 25-acre tract of land from the city of Middletown for $30,000. The land adjoins the company's No. 1 plant near here.

Jack Linzie, assistant to the president of Aeronca, said the land was bought primarily for plant expansion but he did not disclose any future plans to develop the area.

John A. Lawler, president of Aeronca, also announced the company has signed a $250,000 subcontract with the Lockheed Aircraft Corp., to manufacture doors for the Air Force's new C-130 Hercules cargo transport plane.

Michigan, Ohio Wide Apart On Road Use Pact

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Michigan and Ohio, seeking to negotiate a new reciprocity pact for motor vehicles, were wide apart on a possible settlement today.

Robert L. Moulton, chairman of the Ohio Reciprocity Board, said he had seen Michigan's latest proposal to exempt that state's trucks from Ohio's axle mile tax. The Michigan proposal was "diametrically opposed" to Ohio's, he said.

Ohio wants out-of-state truckers as well as its own to pay the axle tax for use of Ohio highways.

John H. McCarthy, who was in Columbus yesterday, did not show up for a meeting of the Ohio Reciprocity Board. McCarthy is chairman of the Michigan Reciprocity Board. Moulton quoted McCarthy as saying he understood Ohio's position, and Ohio understood his, so there was no reason to meet.

Is This World A Fat Man's Paradise?

Not if you can believe insurance statistics which claim that overweight causes more deaths than cancer. Reliable authorities hold that obesity is responsible for more disability and sickness than any other physical condition. If you are troubled with excess weight read this letter from L. E. Armstrong, 2717 Ralph Ave., Cleveland 9, Ohio who writes: "I had been troubled with a bad heart, and my doctor advised that I lose weight. With the help of Rennel Concentrate I was able to decrease my weight from 224 lbs. to 169 lbs. I would like to tell everyone who is overweight the good that Rennel has done for me."

Thousands of others have overcome the social and physical discomfort of being overweight with this effective home recipe. It's easy—no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your druggist and ask for four ounces of liquid Rennel Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Then take two tablespoonfuls twice a day. That's all there is to it. No diets to complicate your meal planning. No expensive vitamins to fortify your system from weakness while going without food for you can eat normally. If the very first bottle doesn't show the simple easy way to lose pounds of bulky fat and help regain slender, more youthful curves — if reducible excess fat doesn't seem to disappear almost like magic just return the empty bottle to the manufacturer for your money back. Insist on and be sure to get Rennel.

Best Buick yet

When better automobiles are built Buick will build them

IT COMES upon the heels of the most successful Buick in history—and beats it on every score.

In shimmering steel and solid sinew, it's Buick for 1956—and there's never been anything like it for pure automobile.

You get a good hint of what we mean when you take in the sweep-ahead styling of it—from the air-splitting prow of its V-front grille to the robust rake of its canted rear profile.

You get an even better hint when you open the doors and see the dazzle there—in the decorator fabrics and décors—in the jewel-like finish of the fittings—in the precisely shaped steering wheel and controls—in the rich new instrument panel with soft-padded top and glowing dials that detail your progress in changing colors.

But it's when you put this beauty to the city streets and the open highways that you learn the best of it.

Performance Without Parallel

A new advance in Variable Pitch Dynaflow* goes airplanes one better—steps up your getaway in normal driving without switching the pitch. But when you need that extra surge, it's there, instantly—and in extra abundance.

The might of big 322-cubic-inch V8 engines in every Series brings new record high power to all Buicks—ROADMASTER, SUPER, CENTURY, and the bedrock-priced SPECIAL. Yet this is such high-compression power, such dynamic driving power, such completely usable power at the rear wheels—the whole rear end has been endowed with extra brawn and heft and solidity to handle it.

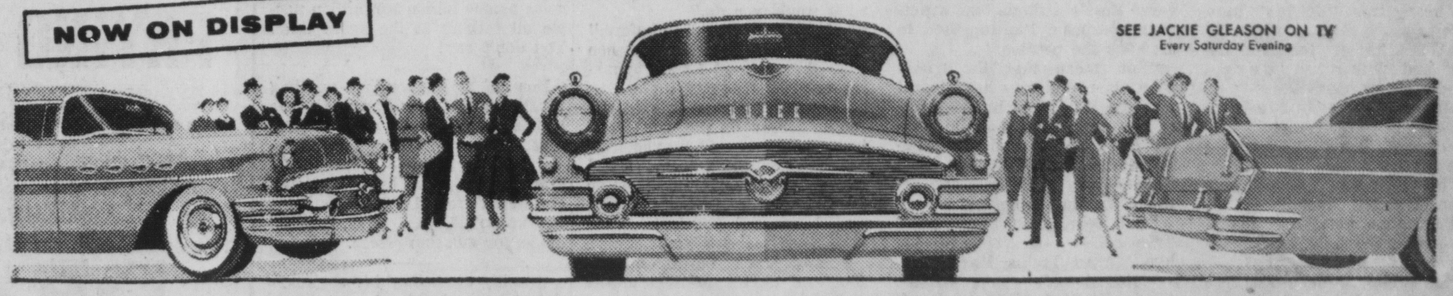

We could spread before you an acre of blueprints on the engineering gems that spark the spectacular performance and ride and handling and roadability of these great Buicks for 1956.

We could tell you about a new double-Y manifolding of the engine for more usable power. And about a brilliant new front-end geometry that adds a whole new "sense of direction" to the car's travel. And about massive new direct-action shock absorbers that move three times more oil to cushion your all-coil-spring ride that much more buoyantly.

But you can get the full story right now, at our showroom, in a face-to-face meeting with the best Buicks yet—now on display, and setting a dazzling new pattern for 1956.

When better automobiles are built Buick will build them

IT COMES upon the heels of the most successful Buick in history—and beats it on every score.

In shimmering steel and solid sinew, it's Buick for 1956—and there's never been anything like it for pure automobile.

You get a good hint of what we mean when you take in the sweep-ahead styling of it—from the air-splitting prow of its V-front grille to the robust rake of its canted rear profile.

You get an even better hint when you open the doors and see the dazzle there—in the decorator fabrics and décors—in the jewel-like finish of the fittings—in the precisely shaped steering wheel and controls—in the rich new instrument panel with soft-padded top and glowing dials that detail your progress in changing colors.

But it's when you put this beauty to the city streets and the open highways that you learn the best of it.

Performance Without Parallel

A new advance in Variable Pitch Dynaflow* goes airplanes one better—steps up your getaway in normal driving without switching the pitch. But when you need that extra surge, it's there, instantly—and in extra abundance.

The might of big 322-cubic-inch V8 engines in every Series brings new record high power to all Buicks—ROADMASTER, SUPER, CENTURY, and the bedrock-priced SPECIAL. Yet this is such high-compression power, such dynamic driving power, such completely usable power at the rear wheels—the whole rear end has been endowed with extra brawn and heft and solidity to handle it.

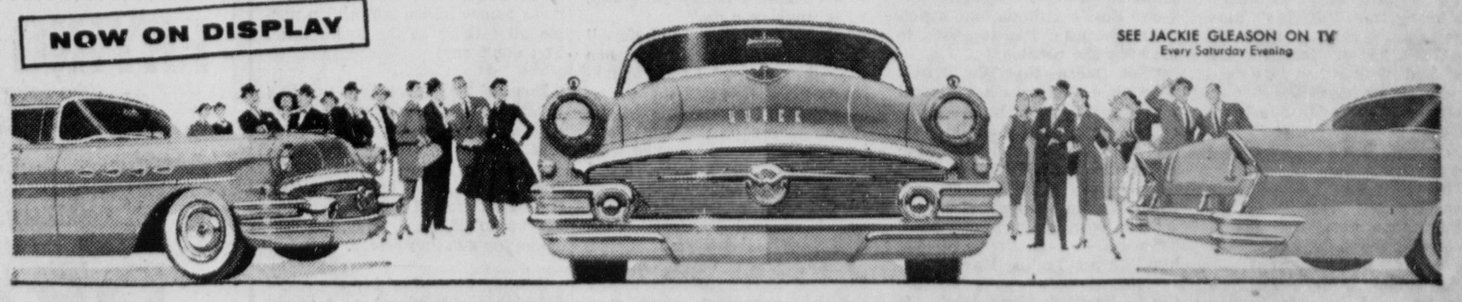

We could spread before you an acre of blueprints on the engineering gems that spark the spectacular performance and ride and handling and roadability of these great Buicks for 1956.

We could tell you about a new double-Y manifolding of the engine for more usable power. And about a brilliant new front-end geometry that adds a whole new "sense of direction" to the car's travel. And about massive new direct-action shock absorbers that move three times more oil to cushion your all-coil-spring ride that much more buoyantly.

But you can get the full story right now, at our showroom, in a face-to-face meeting with the best Buicks yet—now on display, and setting a dazzling new pattern for 1956.

New Advanced Variable Pitch Dynaflow is the only Dynaflow Buick builds today. It is standard on Roadmaster, Super and Century—optional at modest extra cost on the Special.*

DISTRUSTING THE PUBLIC

NEW EVIDENCE has turned up of the bureaucrats' distrust of letting the public know what they do. A new survey of federal agencies in Washington reveals that the agency officials have set up 30 security classifications for information.

Nearly every GI will remember the military wartime classifications for information and documents: Restricted, Confidential, Secret and Top Secret.

In November, 1953, President Eisenhower decided that too much information that should be made public was being hidden behind these labels. He ordered the "Restricted" group abolished and asked all departments to reclassify all information, making public all possible.

This was a step in the direction of recognizing the public's "right to know" what its government is doing.

But some department heads in Washington have gone exactly counter to the President's orders, making their own unofficial classifications. One can only presume that they fear exposure of their own wrongdoings, inefficiencies or the like if this information is released to the public.

Newsmen are in a constant battle to open up the sources of information for the public. They win one skirmish — such as getting approval from the President—only to find that this is defeated by some pipsqueak bureaucrat.

'THE LAW'S DELAY'

THE USE OF legal technicalities, loopholes, and tactics in behalf of defendants in criminal cases often aggravates a public into the conviction that justice is being thwarted.

Then along comes a case such as the near miscarriage of justice at Lawton, Okla. A 23-year-old musician was identified as an armed robber by the victim and seemed even closer to guilt because he said he couldn't remember where he had been the night of the robbery.

Even though he insisted he had not committed the robbery, it seemed an open and shut case that would bring him a prison sentence and ruin his life.

But after the musician had spent 73 days in jail awaiting trial, another Oklahoman was arrested and confessed to the robbery. "A case of mistaken identity," officers explained.

The Lawton case is a vivid reminder of the importance of the precious personal guarantees in the Bill of Rights, even though they seem to delay and subvert justice at times. They are built on the overriding judicial principle that a man is innocent until proved guilty.

In impatience with legal technicalities it is necessary to beware of discarding priceless privileges that again and again have been proved necessary.

These Days

We were sitting about in the club waiting for our lunch and talking about this and that when one of my companions without much ado said:

"And now I'll tell you a true one."

And having heard many true ones which turned out to be good ones, I listened to this tale:

It seems as how diamond merchants in Europe do most of their exciting business during the mornings, when the sun is clear and the gems glisten. In the afternoons, they take a long lunch or sit over coffee in the cafes or play pinochle, which is still a game for those who like the same companions day after day.

Such a group included Mr. Kessler, a diamond merchant who had grown to be a cynic and an atheist and who laughed at good luck and other superstitions. And often he annoyed his colleagues by interrupting their play and their thoughts by insisting upon touting his cynicisms and his materialism which the other diamond merchants disliked because, who can tell, one might get fooled in these modern times when tricky chemicals can make everything false.

And so Mr. Steinberg one day challenged his friend, Kessler:

"You say you have no soul. You say you are just flesh and blood like a cow, which also gives milk. You say that there is nothing supernatural and that you fear nothing in Heaven or on Earth.

"All right, I'll buy your soul. I'll pay you cash for it."

"Don't be a pudding head,' said Kessler. "How can you buy what doesn't exist?"

"That's my business. You write me a paper, selling your soul to me and, right now, I will give you a check for 10,000 francs."

"That's silly," Kessler replied. "What good is such a paper?'

Steinberg answered, 'To me the paper is good. 'You write and sign and Ill give you the check. Right here and now. You talk so much. Now, I call you."

So Kessler wrote a paper:

'For the sum of 10,000 francs, I this day sell my soul to Jakob Steinberg."

Steinberg handed him a check. They drank coffee and cognac and called it a day.

A few days later, Kessler came to Steinberg and said:

"Look! I'm in trouble. My wife objects to our transaction. She said that she will not live with a man who sold his soul for money. I love my wife more than 10,000 francs. Give me back the paper and I'll give you back the check."

Steinberg answered: "For years, you have boasted you have no soul. I paid you 10,000 francs for what you said you didn't have. I did not ask you to do anything for the money. I only asked you to make out a bill of sale and live as before without further obligation to me. A sale is a sale. So far as I'm concerned, I'll keep the paper and you keep the check."

Kessler left, a shaken man. His wife surely would leave him. He could not attend to the diamond business. He could not concentrate. He could not tell good from bad diamonds. He could not sleep, worrying about what would happen to his business.

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE

BY THE time Lois reached the village she was uncomfortably warm. The sun blazed down uncompromisingly. She walked slowly around the village green. In front of a small white house, freshly painted, with flower beds arranged for self-conscious prettiness, she found the neat plaque, Marshall Thomas, M.D.

She knocked at the door and a motherly looking woman with a beaming face admitted her.

"May I see the doctor?"

"He's out on a house call but he'll be back at any minute." The woman opened the door of a room that originally had been a parlor and now was a doctor's waiting room. The furniture was heavy, old-fashioned. It was typical, Lois thought, of the old-time family doctor's waiting room. She wondered vaguely why she was surprised and then realized that so few things conform to type. This atmosphere had deliberately been created. She recalled Bessie's caustic comment, "He's so busy trying to be the old family doctor Roger made him out to be—"

"Will you be comfortable?" the woman asked. "I'm Doc's wife, Helen Thomas. Do let me give you a glass of lemonade. I just made some." She bustled out, not waiting for a reply.

Lois stood looking out on the green. How curious, she thought, that everyone seemed to be wearing himself out trying to be someone else. Mrs. Thomas was back almost at once with a frosty glass of lemonade. She settled herself comfortably in an old rocker.

"You're Mrs. Fleming, aren't you?" She laughed when she saw Lois' surprise. "Carol Brindle had supper—dinner, she calls it—with us last night. First time the poor girl's been anywhere since her great sorrow." Lois looked up quickly but Mrs. Thomas' face was bland as she employed Carol's own phrase. "She told us about you so I recognized you the minute you came up the steps. Short, dark, curly hair, she said; though she kind of forgot to say you're pretty." This time the hostility crept through. "She wanted Doc to help you any way he can. He'll be delighted."

"That's nice of him."

"Doc's only human. He can't say no to Carol any more than any other man can." She added without transition, "I hear the first Mrs. Brindle is back."

Lois made no comment. She was busy lighting a cigaret and trying to make herself secure on the slippery horsehair upholstery.

"One thing Carol couldn't be first in. She got Roger second hand." When Lois made no reply Mrs. Thomas tried again. "I hear Shandy Stowe took Jane Brindle to dinner last night. I always used to say, 'If there's something to be done, leave it to Jane.'"

She's trying to tell me something, Lois thought. How much does she know?

"That's quite a household for Carol to keep up," Mrs. Thomas remarked. "All Roger's waifs and strays: the Kibbees, the Hatterys, Paula Case."

"I thought Paula was Mrs. Brindle's niece."

"Well, yes, but it was Roger's idea to bring her to the house when her parents died. He was the one to keep her there. I always say a married woman is asking for trouble when she brings a younger woman into her house. Not that Paula is any match for her aunt when it comes to looks, but seventeen—there's a lot of appeal just in being seventeen."

Lois felt her way. "She seems to be rather a nervous child."

"Nervous! When Roger died, Doc had more trouble with the niece and the secretary than he did with Carol, I can tell you. Paula cried her eyes out and Ethel Hattery went right straight into hysterics. He had to give her a hypodermic to quiet her." She added, "Of course, Roger was the virile type—" she let the sentence fall. To her disappointment Lois did not pick it up.

"Not that Carol didn't act heartbroken," Mrs. Thomas tried again. "Only she didn't seem so—surprised, somehow." Her voice dwindled off and then she started on another tack. "Pity you weren't here for the funeral. People came from everywhere. Even brought out the Kibbee boy. First time I'd laid eyes on him." She added thoughtfully, "Gave me quite a shock."

A car stopped outside the house and Mrs. Thomas heaved herself out of the rocker to go to the window. "There's Doc now. I'll just tell him you're here." She went out and absentmindedly closed the door of the waiting room behind her. Lois heard sibilant whispering in the hall, the door opened and Doc came in. Really, Lois thought, this is absurd. No country doctor ever looked as much like one as Dr. Thomas. He was short and plump and calculatedly untidy, with a big booming laugh and a hearty bedside manner.

"Well, Mrs. Fleming, glad to see you. Helen told me you were here.

"Let's see what Doc can do for you." He fitted his hands neatly together and peered down over his spectacles. "Roger Brindle. If you read his column—and who didn't?—you know he and I were—" (Oh, no, don't say it, Lois protested in her mind)—"buddies," he finished inevitably. "Ever see him?"

"Only photographs."

"Big guy, six-four, with a face like those carved on mountains. Rugged, you know. Everyone liked Roger. He had a kind of exuberance. A party always picked up when he came in. Tremendous vitality." He pondered for a moment. "You know, it's queer," he said in a tone of surprise, "it's kind of hard to quote him, to tell you things he said. Without his voice and his ways they don't sound like much. I don't know what there was about him—"

"It's hard to define the things that make personality," Lois agreed.

"I guess that's it. Well, I met him when he first came to Stoweville to be a reporter. He and his first wife were both working on the paper here. Understand Jane's come back.

Lois nodded.

"Smart newspaper woman," he said. "Very nice person, if you know what I mean. Don't know what broke up that marriage. Roger never talked about it. Did him a lot of damage at the time but after he married Carol he was all right again. Gorgeous creature, Carol."

"She's a very pretty woman," Lois agreed.

"And Roger made a lot of her. Bought the Stowe house and gave her every single thing her heart desired. The Cases were poor as church mice but she's had it nice ever since she married. Don't know what the poor girl will do now. I'd have thought Roger would leave something. He was so successful." He made a juicy, mouth-filling word of successful, letting it linger on his palate, savoring it.

"Perhaps," Lois suggested carefully, "he thought he had plenty of time to make arrangements for her. He thought he was in good health."

Dr. Thomas gave her a quick look. "That old pump of his—I'd been warning him about that. Guess I was the only one who wasn't surprised when it stopped on him."

"How odd! I understood from the first Mrs. Brindle that a New York specialist gave him a clean bill of health only a month before he died."

Looking Back In Pickaway County

FIVE YEARS AGO

County law authorities reported that the villages of Williamsport and Tarlton were all but turned upside down by Halloween pranksters.

Pickaway County commissioners Tuesday gave the nod to installation of two new fire escapes at the County Home.

A total of $1,387,184 was earned by 2,359 workers in Pickaway County industries during the first quarter of 1950, an average wage of $196 per month.

TEN YEARS AGO

Sixty-seven men who were originally handled through the Pickaway County Selective Service office have reported to the office after receiving their discharges.

Firemen were called upon Monday afternoon to aid a Court St. oil dealer to change bulbs in outside light posts for which job a tall enough ladder was not available on the premises.

Eighteen small guests helped Jane Wallace celebrate her eighth birthday anniversary at the home of her grandmother, Mrs. H. B. Given, W. Mound St.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Stout had for their dinner guests Sunday at their home on N. Court St., Mrs. Joseph Myers and daughter Margaret, and Miss Ruth Wolfe of this city.

Voters of Circleville were turning out enmasse to the pols today with a large number of ballots being cast at almost every precinct.

Stranger things have happened but it seems like a coincidence that although there is a voting both at the fire station, not one of the six members of the fire department is permitted to cast his ballot there.

A test by Minneapolis researchers showed that a jet plane engine's afterburner makes as much noise as one billion 500 million people all talking at the same time. You don't say!

None of 100 bottles in a mailbag which fell 10,000 feet from a plane and landed in a bush were broken. Must be pretty strong stuff.

Mexico City is buying castoff streetcars from U. S. cities, paying up to $6,000 a copy. Lot of dough for museum pieces.

Russia, according to a Tokyo dispatch, is building a raliroad causeway from Siberia to Sakhalin island in the Sea of Okhotsk. Maybe the Russkis will really have invented something after all—a seagoing choo-choo.

DIET AND HEALTH

Oldsters Need Less Fats

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

WHILE all of us need some fat in our diets, we need less as we grow older.

As a matter of fact, many experts on food matters insist that it is harmful for older persons to eat more than the minimum amount of fat necessary for body maintenance.

Gallbladder Ailments

Gallbladder disease, for example, traditionally chooses its victims from among women in the "fair, fat and forty" group. Excess eating of fats seems to have a definite bearing on gallbladder ailments.

We know for a fact that most gallstones contain cholesterol, a type of fat. Hardening of the arteries, too, frequently is caused by deposits of cholesterol along artery walls and fatty deposits in the liver can cause much damage.

Even after you take off those excess pounds, don't forget what you have learned from your reducing diets.

Cut down your fat allowances as you grow older. Just remember that many foods contain hidden fat.

For instance, fat is dispersed through the lean meat of a prime steak and fish. Most types of cheese contain a lot of fat and it's found even in some vegetables.

So, be on the safe side. Don't eat so much fried foods and rich pastries. Make allowance for the hidden fat you eat.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

L. K.: What is the daily minimum requirement for Vitamin A?

Answer: The daily requirement for Vitamin A has been set at five thousand international units.

Try, Stop Me

Ernest Elmo Caulkins recalls a meeting of the Quoin Club at which Author Sam Blythe was chairman. The assemblage had dined well and been regaled with lots of stories when James B. Connolly, who wrote books about the Gloucester fishermen, was called upon for a few remarks. He began describing how he caught a big fish and—though some members were wriggling in their seats and others slipping out the side doors—blithely kept on detailing every move and emotion of both himself and the fish.

When he finally sat down, Toastmaster Blythe rose and declared solemnly, "Thank you, Mr. Connolly. I will never eat another fish.'

The convention ended in a riotous banquet, followed by a night of constant cheer. At its conclusion, one delegate glared accusingly at another and complained, "Say, you still look wonderful! Whassamatter, you got an ulcer?"

Petition For The Princess

By HAL BOYLE

HOMETOWN, U.S.A. (AP)—Wilbur Peeble, America's most average husband, came home, sat down on the sofa, and pulled off his shoes.

He wiggled his stockinged toes, groaned cavernously as he stared at them with the intent look men give their feet when they hurt.

"Boy, am I glad this day is over," he said loudly.

His wife, Trellis Mae, looked up from the desk where she had been scribbling busily.

"Oh, you startled me," she said. "Are you home?"

"I don't know whether this is home," replied her husband with heavy iron. "But it's where I hang up my pants at night."

Trellis Mae let the remark pass, and Wilbur wondered vaguely if she were ill.

"Wilbur, I'm writing a petition, and I need your help."

"Now what's the P.T.A. done wrong?" he asked.

"This isn't about school. It's about Meg and Peter."

"You mean those new neighbors that moved in upstairs? Are they making noise already?"

"No, stupid, I mean Princess Margaret Rose and Capt. Peter Townsend. He wants to marry her but she told him no on account of she has to put duty ahead of love on account of he's divorced and she is a member of royalty and she can't marry him because his first wife is still alive."

"So what?" yawned Wilbur.

"So it sounds pretty flimsy to me. She keeps him dangling for two years, then they enjoy 18 days together and then she tells him it's no go. Mighty fishy. Old King Henry VIII, when he wanted to marry a new wife, didn't worry about divorce. He just lopped off the head of his old wife."

"Not a bad idea," murmured Wilbur.

"What did you say?

'I said—what a batty idea," backtracked Wilbur quickly. "But what's all this about a petition?"

"Well, the ladies of our club met this afternoon and voted unanimously to inform the British ambassador that we thought Margaret Rose's attitude was strictly unAmerican. I'm supposed to draw up the petition."

"You mean that the British government not only has to deal with the Mau Maus but also faces the problem of handling the Minerva Literary and Gin Rummy Society?" said Wilbur. "I'll have nothing to do with the petition. Britain has enough woes."

"But poor, poor Capt. Peter Townsend—my heart bleeds for him," cried Trellis Mae.

"Mine doesn't," said Wilbur. "In a way he's better off. If she'd said yes, there'd always be gossip that he was merely a poor fly boy who stole the key to a woman's favor and fortune.

"Now he's free to make a million dollars on his own. He could get at least a half million writing his memoirs, '18 days in the Wrong Castles,' a quarter million starring in a Hollywood movie of his life, and another quarter million lecturing to women's clubs and turning out magazine articles."

"Oh, Peter Townsend would never stoop to such things," objected Trellis Mae. "After all, he's royal too, in his own way. He was a hero in the Royal Air Force."

"Well, I'd stoop to 'em," said Wilbur. "Nobody's give me the run-around and get away with it."

Trellis Mae looked at him curiously.

"Supposing I was a princess and you wanted to marry me but there were rules against it and I said I couldn't marry you—well, what would you do."

"I'd do like I did before," said Wilbur, "like I did when your old man said I wasn't making enough money to support us both, and your mother said she couldn't bear to see you leave home, and you said maybe we'd better put it off a while, and I told you that people can't just go on through life putting off love, and I dragged you out of the house and married you."

Trellis Mae's eyes misted. She tore up the petition to the British government, came over and sat in her husband's lap, rumpled his hair and kissed him.

"Wilbur, sometimes you act like a gruff old bear," she said, "and bears get hungry. What would you really like for dinner?"

"Dinner," said Wilbur, a king at home with his queen in his castle.

"All right, I'll buy your soul. I'll pay you cash for it."

"Don't be a pudding head,' said Kessler. "How can you buy what doesn't exist?"

"That's my business. You write me a paper, selling your soul to me and, right now, I will give you a check for 10,000 francs."

"That's silly," Kessler replied. "What good is such a paper?'

Steinberg answered, 'To me the paper is good. 'You write and sign and Ill give you the check. Right here and now. You talk so much. Now, I call you."

So Kessler wrote a paper:

'For the sum of 10,000 francs, I this day sell my soul to Jakob Steinberg."

Steinberg handed him a check. They drank coffee and cognac and called it a day.

A few days later, Kessler came to Steinberg and said:

"Look! I'm in trouble. My wife objects to our transaction. She said that she will not live with a man who sold his soul for money. I love my wife more than 10,000 francs. Give me back the paper and I'll give you back the check."

Steinberg answered: "For years, you have boasted you have no soul. I paid you 10,000 francs for what you said you didn't have. I did not ask you to do anything for the money. I only asked you to make out a bill of sale and live as before without further obligation to me. A sale is a sale. So far as I'm concerned, I'll keep the paper and you keep the check."

Kessler left, a shaken man. His wife surely would leave him. He could not attend to the diamond business. He could not concentrate. He could not tell good from bad diamonds. He could not sleep, worrying about what would happen to his business.

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE

BY THE time Lois reached the village she was uncomfortably warm. The sun blazed down uncompromisingly. She walked slowly around the village green. In front of a small white house, freshly painted, with flower beds arranged for self-conscious prettiness, she found the neat plaque, Marshall Thomas, M.D.

She knocked at the door and a motherly looking woman with a beaming face admitted her.

"May I see the doctor?"

"He's out on a house call but he'll be back at any minute." The woman opened the door of a room that originally had been a parlor and now was a doctor's waiting room. The furniture was heavy, old-fashioned. It was typical, Lois thought, of the old-time family doctor's waiting room. She wondered vaguely why she was surprised and then realized that so few things conform to type. This atmosphere had deliberately been created. She recalled Bessie's caustic comment, "He's so busy trying to be the old family doctor Roger made him out to be—"

"Will you be comfortable?" the woman asked. "I'm Doc's wife, Helen Thomas. Do let me give you a glass of lemonade. I just made some." She bustled out, not waiting for a reply.

Lois stood looking out on the green. How curious, she thought, that everyone seemed to be wearing himself out trying to be someone else. Mrs. Thomas was back almost at once with a frosty glass of lemonade. She settled herself comfortably in an old rocker.

"You're Mrs. Fleming, aren't you?" She laughed when she saw Lois' surprise. "Carol Brindle had supper—dinner, she calls it—with us last night. First time the poor girl's been anywhere since her great sorrow." Lois looked up quickly but Mrs. Thomas' face was bland as she employed Carol's own phrase. "She told us about you so I recognized you the minute you came up the steps. Short, dark, curly hair, she said; though she kind of forgot to say you're pretty." This time the hostility crept through. "She wanted Doc to help you any way he can. He'll be delighted."

"That's nice of him."

"Doc's only human. He can't say no to Carol any more than any other man can." She added without transition, "I hear the first Mrs. Brindle is back."

Lois made no comment. She was busy lighting a cigaret and trying to make herself secure on the slippery horsehair upholstery.

"One thing Carol couldn't be first in. She got Roger second hand." When Lois made no reply Mrs. Thomas tried again. "I hear Shandy Stowe took Jane Brindle to dinner last night. I always used to say, 'If there's something to be done, leave it to Jane.'"

She's trying to tell me something, Lois thought. How much does she know?

"That's quite a household for Carol to keep up," Mrs. Thomas remarked. "All Roger's waifs and strays: the Kibbees, the Hatterys, Paula Case."

"I thought Paula was Mrs. Brindle's niece."

"Well, yes, but it was Roger's idea to bring her to the house when her parents died. He was the one to keep her there. I always say a married woman is asking for trouble when she brings a younger woman into her house. Not that Paula is any match for her aunt when it comes to looks, but seventeen—there's a lot of appeal just in being seventeen."

Lois felt her way. "She seems to be rather a nervous child."

"Nervous! When Roger died, Doc had more trouble with the niece and the secretary than he did with Carol, I can tell you. Paula cried her eyes out and Ethel Hattery went right straight into hysterics. He had to give her a hypodermic to quiet her." She added, "Of course, Roger was the virile type—" she let the sentence fall. To her disappointment Lois did not pick it up.

"Not that Carol didn't act heartbroken," Mrs. Thomas tried again. "Only she didn't seem so—surprised, somehow." Her voice dwindled off and then she started on another tack. "Pity you weren't here for the funeral. People came from everywhere. Even brought out the Kibbee boy. First time I'd laid eyes on him." She added thoughtfully, "Gave me quite a shock."

A car stopped outside the house and Mrs. Thomas heaved herself out of the rocker to go to the window. "There's Doc now. I'll just tell him you're here." She went out and absentmindedly closed the door of the waiting room, behind her. Lois heard sibilant whispering in the hall, the door opened and Doc came in. Really, Lois thought, this is absurd. No country doctor ever looked as much like one as Dr. Thomas. He was short and plump and calculatedly untidy, with a big booming laugh and a hearty bedside manner.

"Well, Mrs. Fleming, glad to see you. Helen told me you were here.

"Let's see what Doc can do for you." He fitted his hands neatly together and peered down over his spectacles. "Roger Brindle. If you read his column—and who didn't?—you know he and I were—" (Oh, no, don't say it, Lois protested in her mind)—"buddies," he finished inevitably. "Ever see him?"

"Only photographs."

"Big guy, six-four, with a face like those carved on mountains. Rugged, you know. Everyone liked Roger. He had a kind of exuberance. A party always picked up when he came in. Tremendous vitality." He pondered for a moment. "You know, it's queer," he said in a tone of surprise, "it's kind of hard to quote him, to tell you things he said. Without his voice and his ways they don't sound like much. I don't know what there was about him—"

"It's hard to define the things that make personality," Lois agreed.

"I guess that's it. Well, I met him when he first came to Stoweville to be a reporter. He and his first wife were both working on the paper here. Understand Jane's come back.

Lois nodded.

"Smart newspaper woman," he said. "Very nice person, if you know what I mean. Don't know what broke up that marriage. Roger never talked about it. Did him a lot of damage at the time but after he married Carol he was all right again. Gorgeous creature, Carol."

"She's a very pretty woman," Lois agreed.

"And Roger made a lot of her. Bought the Stowe house and gave her every single thing her heart desired. The Cases were poor as church mice but she's had it nice ever since she married. Don't know what the poor girl will do now. I'd have thought Roger would leave something. He was so successful." He made a juicy, mouth-filling word of successful, letting it linger on his palate, savoring it.

"Perhaps," Lois suggested carefully, "he thought he had plenty of time to make arrangements for her. He thought he was in good health."

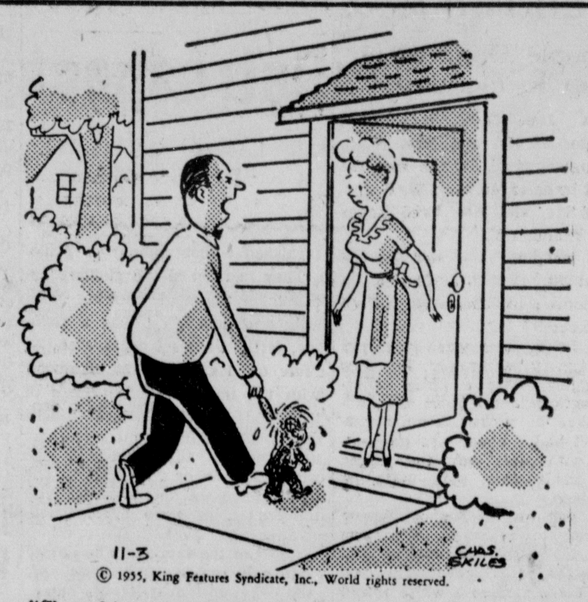

Dr. Thomas gave her a quick look. "That old pump of his—I'd been warning him about that. Guess I was the only one who wasn't surprised when it stopped on him."

"How odd! I understood from the first Mrs. Brindle that a New York specialist gave him a clean bill of health only a month before he died."

DIET AND HEALTH

Oldsters Need Less Fats

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

WHILE all of us need some fat in our diets, we need less as we grow older.

As a matter of fact, many experts on food matters insist that it is harmful for older persons to eat more than the minimum amount of fat necessary for body maintenance.

Gallbladder Ailments

Gallbladder disease, for example, traditionally chooses its victims from among women in the "fair, fat and forty" group. Excess eating of fats seems to have a definite bearing on gallbladder ailments.

We know for a fact that most gallstones contain cholesterol, a type of fat. Hardening of the arteries, too, frequently is caused by deposits of cholesterol along artery walls and fatty deposits in the liver can cause much damage.

Even after you take off those excess pounds, don't forget what you have learned from your reducing diets.

Cut down your fat allowances as you grow older. Just remember that many foods contain hidden fat.

For instance, fat is dispersed through the lean meat of a prime steak and fish. Most types of cheese contain a lot of fat and it's found even in some vegetables.

So, be on the safe side. Don't eat so much fried foods and rich pastries. Make allowance for the hidden fat you eat.

Try, Stop Me

Ernest Elmo Caulkins recalls a meeting of the Quoin Club at which Author Sam Blythe was chairman. The assemblage had dined well and been regaled with lots of stories when James B. Connolly, who wrote books about the Gloucester fishermen, was called upon for a few remarks. He began describing how he caught a big fish and—though some members were wriggling in their seats and others slipping out the side doors—blithely kept on detailing every move and emotion of both himself and the fish.

When he finally sat down, Toastmaster Blythe rose and declared solemnly, "Thank you, Mr. Connolly. I will never eat another fish.'

The convention ended in a riotous banquet, followed by a night of constant cheer. At its conclusion, one delegate glared accusingly at another and complained, "Say, you still look wonderful! Whassamatter, you got an ulcer?"

Looking Back In Pickaway County

FIVE YEARS AGO

County law authorities reported that the villages of Williamsport and Tarlton were all but turned upside down by Halloween pranksters.

Pickaway County commissioners Tuesday gave the nod to installation of two new fire escapes at the County Home.

A total of $1,387,184 was earned by 2,359 workers in Pickaway County industries during the first quarter of 1950, an average wage of $196 per month.

TEN YEARS AGO

Sixty-seven men who were originally handled through the Pickaway County Selective Service office have reported to the office after receiving their discharges.

Firemen were called upon Monday afternoon to aid a Court St. oil dealer to change bulbs in outside light posts for which job a tall enough ladder was not available on the premises.

Eighteen small guests helped Jane Wallace celebrate her eighth birthday anniversary at the home of her grandmother, Mrs. H. B. Given, W. Mound St.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Stout had for their dinner guests Sunday at their home on N. Court St., Mrs. Joseph Myers and daughter Margaret, and Miss Ruth Wolfe of this city.

Voters of Circleville were turning out enmasse to the pols today with a large number of ballots being cast at almost every precinct.

Stranger things have happened but it seems like a coincidence that although there is a voting both at the fire station, not one of the six members of the fire department is permitted to cast his ballot there.

Petition For The Princess

By HAL BOYLE

HOMETOWN, U.S.A. (AP)—Wilbur Peeble, America's most average husband, came home, sat down on the sofa, and pulled off his shoes.

He wiggled his stockinged toes, groaned cavernously as he stared at them with the intent look men give their feet when they hurt.

"Boy, am I glad this day is over," he said loudly.

His wife, Trellis Mae, looked up from the desk where she had been scribbling busily.

"Oh, you startled me," she said. "Are you home?"

"I don't know whether this is home," replied her husband with heavy iron. "But it's where I hang up my pants at night."

Trellis Mae let the remark pass, and Wilbur wondered vaguely if she were ill.

"Wilbur, I'm writing a petition, and I need your help."

"Now what's the P.T.A. done wrong?" he asked.

"This isn't about school. It's about Meg and Peter."

"You mean those new neighbors that moved in upstairs? Are they making noise already?"

"No, stupid, I mean Princess Margaret Rose and Capt. Peter Townsend. He wants to marry her but she told him no on account of she has to put duty ahead of love on account of he's divorced and she is a member of royalty and she can't marry him because his first wife is still alive."

"So what?" yawned Wilbur.

"So it sounds pretty flimsy to me. She keeps him dangling for two years, then they enjoy 18 days together and then she tells him it's no go. Mighty fishy. Old King Henry VIII, when he wanted to marry a new wife, didn't worry about divorce. He just lopped off the head of his old wife."

"Not a bad idea," murmured Wilbur.

"What did you say?

'I said—what a batty idea," backtracked Wilbur quickly. "But what's all this about a petition?"

"Well, the ladies of our club met this afternoon and voted unanimously to inform the British ambassador that we thought Margaret Rose's attitude was strictly unAmerican. I'm supposed to draw up the petition."

"You mean that the British government not only has to deal with the Mau Maus but also faces the problem of handling the Minerva Literary and Gin Rummy Society?" said Wilbur. "I'll have nothing to do with the petition. Britain has enough woes."

"But poor, poor Capt. Peter Townsend—my heart bleeds for him," cried Trellis Mae.

"Mine doesn't," said Wilbur. "In a way he's better off. If she'd said yes, there'd always be gossip that he was merely a poor fly boy who stole the key to a woman's favor and fortune.

"Now he's free to make a million dollars on his own. He could get at least a half million writing his memoirs, '18 days in the Wrong Castles,' a quarter million starring in a Hollywood movie of his life, and another quarter million lecturing to women's clubs and turning out magazine articles."

"Oh, Peter Townsend would never stoop to such things," objected Trellis Mae. "After all, he's royal too, in his own way. He was a hero in the Royal Air Force."

"Well, I'd stoop to 'em," said Wilbur. "Nobody's give me the run-around and get away with it."

Trellis Mae looked at him curiously.

"Supposing I was a princess and you wanted to marry me but there were rules against it and I said I couldn't marry you—well, what would you do."

"I'd do like I did before," said Wilbur, "like I did when your old man said I wasn't making enough money to support us both, and your mother said she couldn't bear to see you leave home, and you said maybe we'd better put it off a while, and I told you that people can't just go on through life putting off love, and I dragged you out of the house and married you."

Trellis Mae's eyes misted. She tore up the petition to the British government, came over and sat in her husband's lap, rumpled his hair and kissed him.

"Wilbur, sometimes you act like a gruff old bear," she said, "and bears get hungry. What would you really like for dinner?"

"Dinner," said Wilbur, a king at home with his queen in his castle.

Harrington-Boggs Church Wedding Read In Chillicothe

Couple On 2-Week Trip In Florida

Miss June Ann Harrington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Harrington of Chillicothe was the recent bride of Mr. John W. Boggs, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Boggs of E. Franklin St.

The wedding was read in the Walnut St. Methodist Church in Chillicothe by the Rev. Fred Knickhrem.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Dow Harrington, wore a white ballerina-length princess gown of chantilly lace in chrysanthemum pattern. It had a round neckline outlined with nylon net and edged with irridescents with matching headpiece.

Her veil was of French illusion attached to a crown of hearts trimmed with irridescents to match the bridal gown. The new Mrs. Boggs carried a white orchid bouquet surrounded by white pompons with white streamers and wore a white-gold wrist-watch, a gift of her groom.

The bride's matron of honor was Mrs. Carl Wiseman, of Chillicothe who wore a gold-colored ballerina length gown of cyrstalete and matching headpiece. She carried a brwn and white bouquet of pompoons with green and gold streamers.

Mrs. Robert Liston of Circleville and Mrs. Carl Reichelderfer of Tarlton, sisters of the groom, were the bridesmatrons. They were attired in nile green ballerina-length gowns of cyrstalete with matching headpieces. Their bouquets were white and gold pompons with brown and gold streamers.

Beverly Kay Harrington, dressed in a rose-colored gown, was flower girl for her sister.

Mr. Robert Boggs, brother of the groom, served as best man and Mr. Robert Liston of Circleville and Carl Reichelderfer of Tarlton, brothers-in-law of the groom, were ushers as was Mr. Mack Schumm of Circleville.

Seven branch candelabra, palms and baskets of white chrysanthemums and gladiolas decorated the altar.

Miss Jessie Hilliard played one-half hour of nuptial music prior to the ceremony and the wedding marches. Miss Marilyn Rodgers was soloist.

A reception followed the marriage ceremony in the church social rooms. Friends and relatives were in attendance at the reception.

The bride's mother wore a brown crepe dress trimmed with beige and irridescents with beige accessories. The groom's mother was attired in a teal-blue lace dress with black accessories. Both mothers wore baby chrysanthemum corsages.

The wedding party and out-of-town guests were served a buffet supper given by Mrs. Harrington.

The couple are enjoying a two-week honeymoon in Florida. For her going-away trip, the bride wore a two-piece brown and black dress with a gold hat and purse, black gloves and shoes. She also wore the orchid corsage from her bridal bouquet.

The bride is a graduate of Chillicothe High School and attended business school in Chillicothe. She also took extension courses of Ohio University in Chillicothe schools. She is a member of Walnut St. Methodist Church and of the Wesleyan Guild as well as the Chillicothe Grange.

The groom attended Circleville High School and served in the U. S. Army for five years in Korea and Alaska. He is a member of the American Legion.

The new Mrs. Boggs is associated with the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company office in Chillicothe and Mr. Boggs is associated with DuPont here in Circleville.

The couple will reside in their new home in Kingston.

Miss June Ann Harrington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Harrington of Chillicothe was the recent bride of Mr. John W. Boggs, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Boggs of E. Franklin St.

The wedding was read in the Walnut St. Methodist Church in Chillicothe by the Rev. Fred Knickhrem.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Dow Harrington, wore a white ballerina-length princess gown of chantilly lace in chrysanthemum pattern. It had a round neckline outlined with nylon net and edged with irridescents with matching headpiece.

Her veil was of French illusion attached to a crown of hearts trimmed with irridescents to match the bridal gown. The new Mrs. Boggs carried a white orchid bouquet surrounded by white pompons with white streamers and wore a white-gold wrist-watch, a gift of her groom.

The bride's matron of honor was Mrs. Carl Wiseman, of Chillicothe who wore a gold-colored ballerina length gown of cyrstalete and matching headpiece. She carried a brwn and white bouquet of pompoons with green and gold streamers.

Mrs. Robert Liston of Circleville and Mrs. Carl Reichelderfer of Tarlton, sisters of the groom, were the bridesmatrons. They were attired in nile green ballerina-length gowns of cyrstalete with matching headpieces. Their bouquets were white and gold pompons with brown and gold streamers.

Beverly Kay Harrington, dressed in a rose-colored gown, was flower girl for her sister.

Mr. Robert Boggs, brother of the groom, served as best man and Mr. Robert Liston of Circleville and Carl Reichelderfer of Tarlton, brothers-in-law of the groom, were ushers as was Mr. Mack Schumm of Circleville.

Seven branch candelabra, palms and baskets of white chrysanthemums and gladiolas decorated the altar.

Miss Jessie Hilliard played one-half hour of nuptial music prior to the ceremony and the wedding marches. Miss Marilyn Rodgers was soloist.

A reception followed the marriage ceremony in the church social rooms. Friends and relatives were in attendance at the reception.

The bride's mother wore a brown crepe dress trimmed with beige and irridescents with beige accessories. The groom's mother was attired in a teal-blue lace dress with black accessories. Both mothers wore baby chrysanthemum corsages.

The wedding party and out-of-town guests were served a buffet supper given by Mrs. Harrington.

The couple are enjoying a two-week honeymoon in Florida. For her going-away trip, the bride wore a two-piece brown and black dress with a gold hat and purse, black gloves and shoes. She also wore the orchid corsage from her bridal bouquet.

The bride is a graduate of Chillicothe High School and attended business school in Chillicothe. She also took extension courses of Ohio University in Chillicothe schools. She is a member of Walnut St. Methodist Church and of the Wesleyan Guild as well as the Chillicothe Grange.

The groom attended Circleville High School and served in the U. S. Army for five years in Korea and Alaska. He is a member of the American Legion.

The new Mrs. Boggs is associated with the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company office in Chillicothe and Mr. Boggs is associated with DuPont here in Circleville.

GE Plant Manager At Circleville Explains Firm's New Insurance

The "most extensive catastrophe health insurance program in American manufacturing industry" took effect November 1 for some 200,000 General Electric Company employes here and throughout the nation, it was announced by E. G. Grigg, manager of the Circleville Lamp Plant.

"The insurance is designed to take the risk of personal economic disaster out of serious sickness or injury," Grigg said. Approximately 550 employes at the General Electric Plant here are eligible for the improved medical insurance coverage.

"The protection is offered under either of two plans," Grigg explained. "Under the so-called 'comprehensive plan' and at small cost to himself, a GE employe can protect himself and his dependents against the bulk of hospital and medical bills with benefits ranging up to $7,500 a year for each person covered. For a GE family of four, the yearly benefit ceiling would be $30,000 and the lifetime limit could be $60,000 or even higher.

"Althoughthe new health pprogram is called 'catastrophe' insurance, it also helps pay the bills for illness that is by no means catastrophic. Once an insured employe or a covered dependent has run up bills of $25 to $50 in a year, the plan takes care of 75 percent or more of all additional covered expenses up to the limit.

* * *

"THIS HEALTH insurance is only one part of a much larger package of protection for GE employes and their families. Also, included or the employe are life insurance equal to double his yearly pay, weekly sickness and accident benefits, and accidental death or dismemberment insurance.

"This pioneering 'catastrophe' insurance called the 'comprehensive plan' is one of the two plans worked out in August of this year. The other plan has individual benefit limits of $5,000 a year and $10,000 in a lifetime above basic benefits. It provides for a $100 employe-paid deductible after certain basic hospital and surgical benefits are used up. Then the plan pays 75 percent of other covered expenses up to the maximum.

"Where a choice between plans has already been made, the pioneering 'comprehensive plan' with the $25 to $50 deductible has so far proved to be the favorite. Although, the 'comprehensive plan' calls for employe contributions no higher than the other, it is the broadest industrial insurance plan ever to help out on medical bills ranging all the way from $25 to $50 to $7,500 in just a single year.

"For either plan, the normal cost to an employe for the whole GE insurance package for himself is 0.9 percent of his normal straight-time annual pay. For another 2 percent of the first $5,000 of his pay, he can get the health insurance covering his family as well.

"The field of 'catastrophe' insurance in American industry is still largely uncharted. According to recent estimates of the Health Insurance Council, less than 2 percent of the U. S. population has this protection against major medical expense.

* * *

"At GENERAL ELECTRIC, however, the kind of insurance available which began November 1 is not wholly unprecedent. Back in 1949, a GE association of employes launched a 'catastrophe' insurance plan for themselves and later for their dependents. Later, a type of 'catastrophe' protection was made available through employe associations to all GE employes in Schenectady and Syracuse, N. Y., and Bridgeport, Conn.

"However, in most of American industry, employes themselves have had to carry the burden of the potentially crushing bills that can result from major illness.'

Chicago Records First Snow Deaths

CHICAGO (AP)—The first snowfall of the season in Chicago caused five traffic deaths in seven hours Wednesday night, a record for a seven-hour period.

Blowing snow and slippery streets were blamed by police traffic officials for the fatalities reported between 5 p.m. and midnight. Sgt. William Westerlind of the police traffic division said the death toll was a record for seven hours in Chicago.

The snow fall measured between 1 and 2 inches in most parts of the city and up to 3 inches in some suburbs.

JOSEPH RIZKOWSKI, a gasoline station operator in South Brunswick, N.J., is shown with his wife, Marion, after they, and two hitch-hiking sailors, were kidnaped by a gunman. The thug, fleeing State Police who had halted his car at a nearby radar speed checkpoint, forced Rizkowski to drive him to Trenton, where the captives were freed.

Psychiatrists Due To Examine Trio

LIMA (AP)—Two Franklin County psychiatrists have been appointed to examine three men indicted for first degree murder in the slaying of a Lima State Hospital guard-attendant last July 21.

The defendants, James Baus, 18, of Toledo; Leo Sersich, 26, of Warren, and Thomas Womack, 40, of Cleveland, have pleaded innocent by reason of insanity. Dr. George T. Hardin and Dr. Dwight M. Palmer were appointed to make the examination.

Ohio And Michigan At Odds Over Reciprocal Road Use

COLUMBUS (AP)—The chairman of the Michigan Reciprocity Board will meet today with the Ohio Reciprocity Board, but chances the two states would work out an agreement on the axle-mile tax appeared slim.

John H. McCarthy, representing Michigan, today showed Robert L. Moulton, chairman of the Ohio Board, a proposed pact that would exempt Michigan truckers from paying the Ohio axle-mile tax.

"We know we can't sign the agreement and McCarthy knows that too," commented Moulton.

"But McCarthy will get a chance to present the proposal to the entire board."

Ohio insists on collecting the tax, a levy of ½ to 2½ cents per mile, on all trucks with three or more axles, both from Ohio and out of state truckers.

Moulton said Ohio now is negotiating with West Virginia and "basically, we are in complete agreement. They agree to payment of the axle-mile tax and we agree West Virginia can collect the gas mileage tax on Ohio trucks."

Moulton said he had been informed Pennsylvania had signed an amendment to a reciprocity agreement with Ohio that would include Ohio's taxing Pennsylvania trucks.

Ohio cancelled a score of old reciprocity agreements when the Ohio Supreme Court ruled the Michigan agreement exempted Michigan trucks from the axle-mile tax. In some cases, Ohio extended old agreements but these extensions have run out, Moulton said.

Minnesota, Wisconsin and Tennessee have agreements that provide collection of the axle-mile tax. They were negotiated within the last year, Moulton said. Since then, Rhode Island, Texas and Delaware agreed to changes in old reciprocity agreements to permit collection of the Ohio tax.

Moulton said other states that once had agreements now considered cancelled include Indiana, Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Kentucky, Iowa, Mississippi, Missouri, Nebraska, North Carolina Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, and New Mexico.

GE Plant Manager At Circleville Explains Firm's New Insurance

The "most extensive catastrophe health insurance program in American manufacturing industry" took effect November 1 for some 200,000 General Electric Company employes here and throughout the nation, it was announced by E. G. Grigg, manager of the Circleville Lamp Plant.

"The insurance is designed to take the risk of personal economic disaster out of serious sickness or injury," Grigg said. Approximately 550 employes at the General Electric Plant here are eligible for the improved medical insurance coverage.

"The protection is offered under either of two plans," Grigg explained. "Under the so-called 'comprehensive plan' and at small cost to himself, a GE employe can protect himself and his dependents against the bulk of hospital and medical bills with benefits ranging up to $7,500 a year for each person covered. For a GE family of four, the yearly benefit ceiling would be $30,000 and the lifetime limit could be $60,000 or even higher.

"Althoughthe new health pprogram is called 'catastrophe' insurance, it also helps pay the bills for illness that is by no means catastrophic. Once an insured employe or a covered dependent has run up bills of $25 to $50 in a year, the plan takes care of 75 percent or more of all additional covered expenses up to the limit.

* * *

"THIS HEALTH insurance is only one part of a much larger package of protection for GE employes and their families. Also, included or the employe are life insurance equal to double his yearly pay, weekly sickness and accident benefits, and accidental death or dismemberment insurance.

"This pioneering 'catastrophe' insurance called the 'comprehensive plan' is one of the two plans worked out in August of this year. The other plan has individual benefit limits of $5,000 a year and $10,000 in a lifetime above basic benefits. It provides for a $100 employe-paid deductible after certain basic hospital and surgical benefits are used up. Then the plan pays 75 percent of other covered expenses up to the maximum.

"Where a choice between plans has already been made, the pioneering 'comprehensive plan' with the $25 to $50 deductible has so far proved to be the favorite. Although, the 'comprehensive plan' calls for employe contributions no higher than the other, it is the broadest industrial insurance plan ever to help out on medical bills ranging all the way from $25 to $50 to $7,500 in just a single year.

"For either plan, the normal cost to an employe for the whole GE insurance package for himself is 0.9 percent of his normal straight-time annual pay. For another 2 percent of the first $5,000 of his pay, he can get the health insurance covering his family as well.

"The field of 'catastrophe' insurance in American industry is still largely uncharted. According to recent estimates of the Health Insurance Council, less than 2 percent of the U. S. population has this protection against major medical expense.

* * *

"At GENERAL ELECTRIC, however, the kind of insurance available which began November 1 is not wholly unprecedent. Back in 1949, a GE association of employes launched a 'catastrophe' insurance plan for themselves and later for their dependents. Later, a type of 'catastrophe' protection was made available through employe associations to all GE employes in Schenectady and Syracuse, N. Y., and Bridgeport, Conn.

"However, in most of American industry, employes themselves have had to carry the burden of the potentially crushing bills that can result from major illness.'

Psychiatrists Due To Examine Trio

LIMA (AP)—Two Franklin County psychiatrists have been appointed to examine three men indicted for first degree murder in the slaying of a Lima State Hospital guard-attendant last July 21.

The defendants, James Baus, 18, of Toledo; Leo Sersich, 26, of Warren, and Thomas Womack, 40, of Cleveland, have pleaded innocent by reason of insanity. Dr. George T. Hardin and Dr. Dwight M. Palmer were appointed to make the examination.

Chicago Records First Snow Deaths

CHICAGO (AP)—The first snowfall of the season in Chicago caused five traffic deaths in seven hours Wednesday night, a record for a seven-hour period.

Blowing snow and slippery streets were blamed by police traffic officials for the fatalities reported between 5 p.m. and midnight. Sgt. William Westerlind of the police traffic division said the death toll was a record for seven hours in Chicago.

The snow fall measured between 1 and 2 inches in most parts of the city and up to 3 inches in some suburbs.

Ohio And Michigan At Odds Over Reciprocal Road Use

COLUMBUS (AP)—The chairman of the Michigan Reciprocity Board will meet today with the Ohio Reciprocity Board, but chances the two states would work out an agreement on the axle-mile tax appeared slim.

John H. McCarthy, representing Michigan, today showed Robert L. Moulton, chairman of the Ohio Board, a proposed pact that would exempt Michigan truckers from paying the Ohio axle-mile tax.

"We know we can't sign the agreement and McCarthy knows that too," commented Moulton.

"But McCarthy will get a chance to present the proposal to the entire board."

Ohio insists on collecting the tax, a levy of ½ to 2½ cents per mile, on all trucks with three or more axles, both from Ohio and out of state truckers.

Moulton said Ohio now is negotiating with West Virginia and "basically, we are in complete agreement. They agree to payment of the axle-mile tax and we agree West Virginia can collect the gas mileage tax on Ohio trucks."

Moulton said he had been informed Pennsylvania had signed an amendment to a reciprocity agreement with Ohio that would include Ohio's taxing Pennsylvania trucks.

Ohio cancelled a score of old reciprocity agreements when the Ohio Supreme Court ruled the Michigan agreement exempted Michigan trucks from the axle-mile tax. In some cases, Ohio extended old agreements but these extensions have run out, Moulton said.

Minnesota, Wisconsin and Tennessee have agreements that provide collection of the axle-mile tax. They were negotiated within the last year, Moulton said. Since then, Rhode Island, Texas and Delaware agreed to changes in old reciprocity agreements to permit collection of the Ohio tax.

Moulton said other states that once had agreements now considered cancelled include Indiana, Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Kentucky, Iowa, Mississippi, Missouri, Nebraska, North Carolina Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, and New Mexico.

Union Chief Urges A-Energy Training

COLUMBUS (AP)—A shortage of trained people in the atomic energy field poses a potential weak point in the nation's future, a top labor official says.

James A. Brownlow, president of the AFL Metal Trades Department, spoke at the fifth annual Ohio Apprenticeship Conference yesterday.

"We can't train too many skilled workers," he said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some kind of insurance against disasters — at least against floods like these which followed the yisit of Hurricane Diane — may come out of Congress in 1956.

But before Congress approves such protection, it will have to cut its way through three questions which are now very tangled: What kind of disaster insurance? How much insurance for any one individual? And who handles it?

This week the Senate Banking Committee has been holding hearings to find out what government officials propose. None of them has provided a specific plan yet. They promise to have one by the time Congress returns in January.

There is no flood insurance available in this country now, although this fact seemed once again to have been lost sight of until the floods broke loose in New England last August when Diane let the enormous rains loose.

As a result of those floods 179 persons were killed, 6,992 were injured, 813 homes were destroyed, and the damage amounted to more than 450 million dollars.

On of the reasons for the lack of flood insurance, it seems, is the scattered, but nevertheless limited, natue of the problem. The only ones who would want or need it would be those living near streams or river which might boil over.

People liying on high ground in the area wouldn't need it. Just because that type of insurance would be limited, the price of it would be high if private companies handled it, perhaps out of reach of those who needed it.

Then there is the problem of occurrence that a private company would have to consider: How often would a stream or river be expected to overflow as a result of natural phenomenon, like extraordinarily heavy rains?

Say it was figured that on River AAA, after a search of the records, a flood could be expected on an average of every 50 years. That might seem like a good insurance risk.

But suppose River AAA flooded three times in 150 years — still sticking to the average of one flood every 50 years — but those three floods came in 1956, again in 1957, and the third time in 1958.

The three floods, bunched together like that, might wreck a company. But how then can flood insurance be provided? At the hearings there were two proposals offered although they may not be the ones finally decided upon by Congress.

One would have the government do the insuring; the other would guarantee the losses of private insurance companies over a certain amount.

It seemed agreed that no one, and no business firm, could get any amount of insurance he wanted. Sen. Lehman (D-NY), who presided at the hearings, talked of a possible limit of $300,000 per company.

Then there was another question: Should the insurance cover not only a man's home but his furniture and other personal belongings, too? The sentiment at the hearings leaned toward coverage for real property, not personal possessions.

But should the insurance cover only homes and business buildings and the merchandise and equipment in those buildings? Or should it cover other things, like a farmer's crops, those still in the field and those already in storage?

One of the toughest problems for he flood victims — in facing the future — is in paying the mortgage still owed on the house which was swept away. Congress will also have to consider that, too.

President Eisenhower has assured New England governors his administration is determined "to assist the states and people of the Northeast in developing adequate protections against future flood and hurricane losses."

But any insurance program approved by Congress—even though, perhaps, it is limited to floods — would cover the whole country.

58 Of 1,571 X-Rays Checked

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Of 1,571 persons who took chest X-rays in the state office building, 1,513 cases showed nothing wrong, the state health department says.

But of the 58 remaining, the department said, there were 11 cases of suspected tuberculosis, 10 of suspected other lung trouble, 10 suspected of heart trouble, 20 with other abnormalities and 7 films that could not be read.

Most of those who submitted to X-rays were state workers, Some suspected cases showed no real trouble in a double check.

Captain Shrugs After Saving Tot

PALM BEACH SHORES, Fla. (AP) —Air Force Capt. J. E. Bunt, 37, LaGrange, Ill., saved 4-year-old Marc Du Pree from drowning in a pool Wednesday but shrugged off his part as "nothing out of the ordinary."

"As I walked by the pool, I saw the boy lying face down in the deep end of the pool," Bunt said.

"It scared hell out of me, because I have a 5-year-old daughter of my own."

Bunt, wearing his uniform, jumped in and took the boy out of the water. Then he applied artificial respiration.

Weekly Food Review

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

You'll find bargains aplenty in food stores this week in beef, lamb, pork and poultry.

Once again, pork is the star attraction. In some cities you'll find prices of center cut pork chops down as much as 14 cents a pound from a week ago.

There's some indication, though, that pork prices may have finally hit rock bottom. Wholesale quotations are up about two cents a pound this week—a hint that retail prices may soon go higher.

Frying chickens are lower in many parts of the country; price cuts average about four or five cents a pound.

Beef fanciers are likely to find slightly lower prices this week on porterhouse and sirloin steaks, rib roasts, chuck, and top and bottom round. Wholesale prices are down a shade, oto.

Roast leg of lamb is moderately priced; lamb chops, although still relatively high, are down a few cents a pound from last week in some cities.

Best vegetable buys still include potatoes and onions. Cabbage is in good supply, along with bunched beets and carrots.

Grapefruit and oranges are abundant and moderately priced.

All Saints' Day Brings Tragedy

MANILA (AP) — It was All Saints' Day.

In the Tubod village store south of Manila, Nivauio Hernandez ran into the Aure brothers, Velencio, 24, and Ciriaco, 20. An old fued flared anew.

They agreed to settle it by a drinking bout — the stake, their lives.

The drink was rum. In time, the Aure Brothers slumped to the floor.

Then, witnesses said, Hernandez shot Velencio dead, stabbed Ciriaco to death, and escaped.

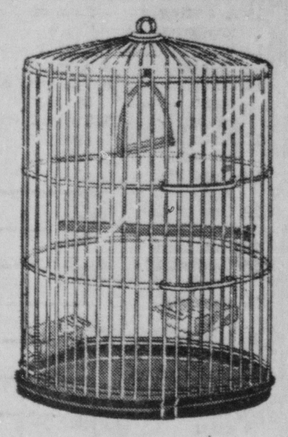

Lima Union Set For Pact Vote

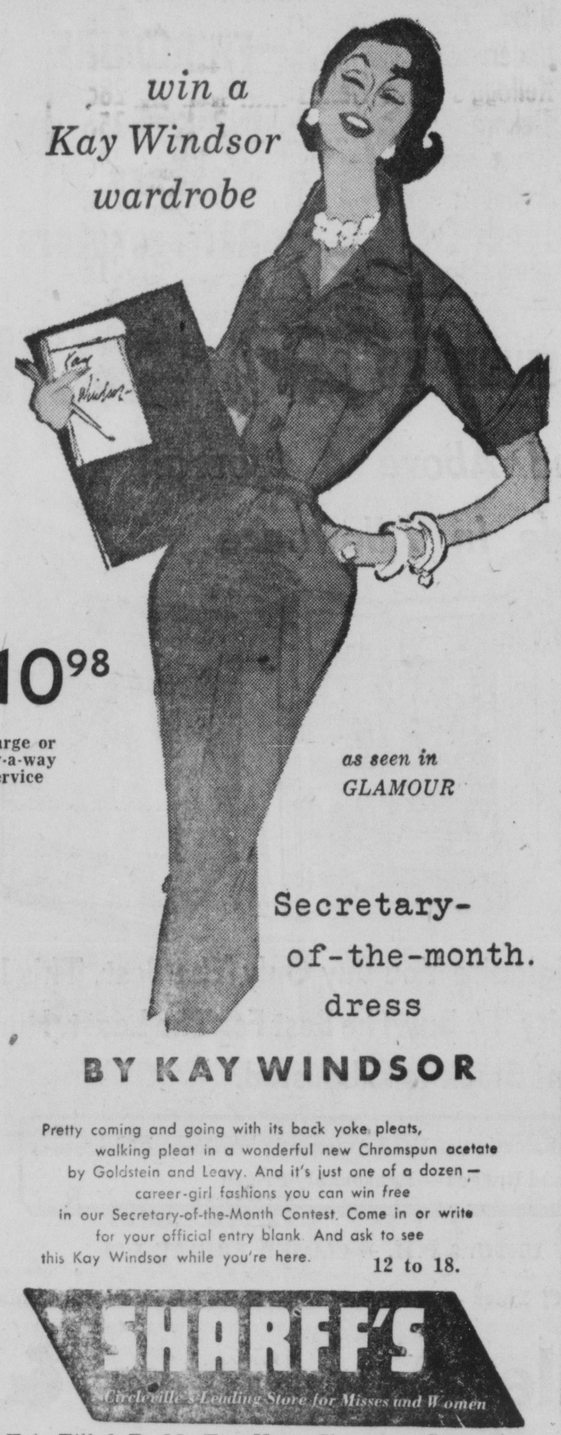

LIMA (AP)—One thousand union workers at the Ex-Cell-O Corp. plant here vote today on whether to accept a new three-year contract. Acceptance probably will mean an end to a near two-month long strike.

Both local and national contract issues are at stake in the voting.

Some 5,000 Ex-Cell-O employes have been idle at plants in Detroit, and Traverse City, Mich., and Fostoria and Lima.

Once again, pork is the star attraction. In some cities you'll find prices of center cut pork chops down as much as 14 cents a pound from a week ago.

There's some indication, though, that pork prices may have finally hit rock bottom. Wholesale quotations are up about two cents a pound this week—a hint that retail prices may soon go higher.

Frying chickens are lower in many parts of the country; price cuts average about four or five cents a pound.

Beef fanciers are likely to find slightly lower prices this week on porterhouse and sirloin steaks, rib roasts, chuck, and top and bottom round. Wholesale prices are down a shade, oto.

Roast leg of lamb is moderately priced; lamb chops, although still relatively high, are down a few cents a pound from last week in some cities.

Best vegetable buys still include potatoes and onions. Cabbage is in good supply, along with bunched beets and carrots.

Grapefruit and oranges are abundant and moderately priced.

All Saints' Day Brings Tragedy

MANILA (AP) — It was All Saints' Day.

In the Tubod village store south of Manila, Nivauio Hernandez ran into the Aure brothers, Velencio, 24, and Ciriaco, 20. An old fued flared anew.

They agreed to settle it by a drinking bout — the stake, their lives.

The drink was rum. In time, the Aure Brothers slumped to the floor.

Then, witnesses said, Hernandez shot Velencio dead, stabbed Ciriaco to death, and escaped.

Lima Union Set For Pact Vote

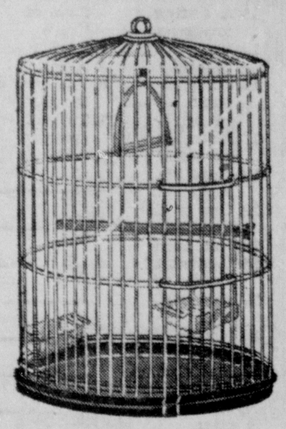

LIMA (AP)—One thousand union workers at the Ex-Cell-O Corp. plant here vote today on whether to accept a new three-year contract. Acceptance probably will mean an end to a near two-month long strike.

Both local and national contract issues are at stake in the voting.

Some 5,000 Ex-Cell-O employes have been idle at plants in Detroit, and Traverse City, Mich., and Fostoria and Lima.

New Marvels Of Automation Are Developed

Automobile, Mining Industries Introduce More Automatic Gear

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) — Automation is moving in on that symbol of American manpower efficiency—the automobile assembly line.

Other huge machines that can dig and load six to eight tons of coal a minute are helping to revive the once ailing coal industry—although cutting working crews in half.

Makers of electrical equipment and aircraft are eyeing automated machines like those Chrysler has installed in its semi-automatic engine assembly line in Detroit.

Labor, management politicians argue whether automation — the automatic control of machines and communications — will mean the loss of present jobs or, instead, will mean the creation of more jobs in the future through a generally higher standard of living.

But while they argue, the machine tool and electronics industries are coming up with new marvels of automatic and semi-automatic machines.

The Cross Co. of Detroit which installed its machines on the Chrysler line in the motor firm's new plant estimates the semi-automatic line saves the auto maker up to 25 per cent in assembly costs of its engines.

There are 150 workmen on the quarter-mile long line now, turning out 150 V-8 engines an hour. On the old assembly lines it took 200 men to turn out that many.

The new line has 280 operating stations. And at many stands a machine instead of a man.

Cylinder blocks are fed into one end of the assembly line by a machine, right cylinder heads at another point, left cylinder heads at a third. As these castings move along automatically, one engine part after another is added. At the end of the line completely assembled engines are removed for installation in new cars.

The Ford Motor Co.'s plant at Cleveland has a 500-foot automated production line for making engine blocks.

Ralph Cross, vice president of the Machine Tool Co., says other auto manufacturers and household appliance makers are looking into the possibilities of similar semi-automated assembly lines.

In some of the nation's coal mines, meanwhile, some new monsters are moving in to replace older forms of mechanization. They are reported cutting work crews from 17 men to seven or eight.

The new 24-foot long boring-type continuous miners can dig and load as much as 1,085 tons in a single seven-hour shift. One mining equipment maker, the Goodman Manufacturing Co. of Chicago, says its largest borer cuts a path 8 feet high and 13 feet 2 inches wide.

It has four-armed rotors, interlocked in egg-beater fashion. Each arm has claws of hardened steel. The boring arms cut two overlapping circles as they break out the coal. A rotating chain slices out the top and bottom sections between the arms.

Before the borers came along, some miners were already using a ripper type machine, only about one half as fast.

About 90 per cent of the nation's mines, however, continue to use the older methods — a machine to undercut the coal, with explosives in holes drilled above the cut to bring down the coal. Another machine loads the coal into a shuttle car for transfer to the main mine haulage system.

Thanks in part to the steady trend toward mechanization in recent years which has held down the once fast-rising price of coal, the coal industry is pulling out of a bad slump.

In 1948 nearly 600 million tons of bituminous coal was mined, but this dropped to less than 400 million last year. The revival this year is putting output about 21 per cent above last year.

One of the big factors this year has been the growing demand of Europe for American coal to keep its steel mills going at a record pace.

L. C. Campbell, president of the National Coal Assn., hails production strides attending mechanization in the past 20 years and adds, "and the end is not in sight."

Illinois Turkey Challenge Accepted By Gov. Lausche

COLUMBUS (AP)—Ohio has agreed to challenge a claim by Illinois that it grows the biggest turkeys.

Gov. Frank J. Lausche accepted an invitation from Illinois Gov. William G. Stratton for Ohioans to participate in the 1956 heaviest-turkey contest.

The event will feature the National Turkey Federation convention and the National Dressed Turkey Show in Chicago Jan. 4-6. Stratton said in his challenge:

"It is only fair to warn you, however, that Illinois has been preparing for this contest for some time. The officials of the Illinois Turkey Growers' Assn. assure me that unless the monsters we have been feeding especially for this contest break out of their 20-foot corral, they will meet all competition."

These Days

Then one day he met Steinberg on the street. Kessler was unshaved. There was not a flower in his buttonhole. There was no light in his eye. There was no argument on his lips.

"My friend," he said, "this piece of paper I gave you has taken away my luck. It may take my life. Please, you give me the paper back and I'll give you your check back."

"Nothing doing," said Steinberg. "When I make a deal, it's a deal. Why should I give you back the paper without a profit? I don't do business without a profit. How much will you pay to get your soul back?"

So Kessler paid a huge profit and now he knows that there is a soul and he has one because he tested his strength without one and could not stand up. Besides, it cost so much.

We looked at each other — we at the luncheon table—and wondered which of us was Kessler.

"Mary Haworth's Mail"

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: When our family moved to this town I wasn't yet 12 years old, but I was enrolled in the seventh grade. In so doing, I skipped three-fourths of the school term; and it seems that from now on, I will always be younger than my classmates. This makes a problem.

Now I am in the eighth grade; and when I went back to school this fall, the girls in my class were talking about their clothes for this term. Then they started comparing notes about their second pair of pumps (for dressup), their lipstick and earrings. When they included me in the conversation, I had to lie and say that my mother had got me the same things.

But the truth is, my mother seems to think I am too young to wear these things even though the pumps I want have only two-inch heels; and the lipstick is a medium shade; and the small earrings would be for Sundays. My mother says that I am "just 12," and that I should dress "like a child of 12." Do you think my mother should act this way?

All of my classmates are 13, and most will be 14 soon; and no child wants to dress like a 12-year-old when the rest of her classmates are 14, and dress like 14-year-olds.

H. C.

DEAR H. C.: As Shakespeare said, "There's nothing either good or bad but thinking makes it so." You have a problem of dress in relation to classmates, only because you think you have. If you were a happy-go-lucky, self-confident, tomboyish sort of girl, who couldn't be bothered with lipstick, earrings and pumps with heels, you'd get along fine with the dressy crowd at school—just being yourself.

That I can testify for sure—speaking from personal knowledge of schoolgirls together. I have in mind a group situation, recently, in which the girls were just entering their teens; and all but one were competitively fashion - conscious, with emphasis on feminine frippery such as lipsticks, earrings "heels" (as they say), and date-bait dress.

As I say, there was this one girl (a trifle younger than the rest) who stuck to her own easy style through junior high school without "varsity touches" such as lipstick, earrings, etc., when the others "dressed up" for social events in which she was included. And she was always as popular as a girl could wish, was affectionately known by a charming nickname—and was good at games and studies too.

Dress Plays Part

On the other hand, I know another girl who became very interested in big-girl dress at a rather prematurely early age. Between 12 and 14, she had a yen to dress more like a 16-year-old—to wear high heels, lipstick, curvaceous high-style modes, etc. Her mother, sympathetically aware of a childish effort to annex social self-confidence via "older" dress—and humorously touched by the outlandish unsuitability of the child's clothes-preference (at that age)—put aside her own good taste, and permitted the child to please herself in some selections.

No harm came of the mother's accommodating policy—maybe because the mother was mentally on her toes, governing and nurturing the girl's development, while also giving her leeway for hopeful, experimental self - assertiveness. But the child didn't improve her looks by the garb she chose, though she may have enjoyed a big season of self-esteem, thanks to her mother's understanding spirit.

Good parents must use their own common sense, related to their particular circumstances, in giving their children helpful rearing. So I can't advise you what your mother should do about you. However, I think if a child of mine were to bring this very problem to me, I'd try to help her see, first the cowardice of lying, which is a very childish trait indeed. And then I believe I might allow her the pumps, the earrings and lipstick (if I could afford), to put her on a style-par with classmates—supposing the classmates are nice people.

M.H.

4 GIs Held Briefly By Reds In Berlin

BERLIN (AP) — The U. S. Army has disclosed four soldiers were arrested by the Russians Monday and held 12 hours because they allegedly took photographs of a Soviet sentry.

An Army spokesman said the matter is being taken up with Soviet authorities. The four included Specialist 3.C. Harold Eisner of Cleveland Heights, Ohio.

State Pushing Its Case Against Slayer Of Parents

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—With only four more state witnesses expected to be called, the prosecution today may wind up its first degree murder case against 20-year-old Robert Jacob Miller, accused in the bludgeon slaying of his parents.

Two of the prosecution's most important witnesses testified yesterday in Franklin County Criminal Court. They were:

City Homicide Squad Sgt. C. D. Lewis, who gave a detailed account of what he said was Miller's statement concerning the crime.

And Miller's 16-year-old girlfriend, Ruby L. Perkins, who testified the defendant was a "nice guy" who acted "the same as always" in the 10 hours he spent with her immediately following the slaying.

Prosecuting Attorney Samuel L. Devine made no mention of the death penalty in his initial address to the court.

Miller is charged with hammering and hacking to death his mother, Mrs. Betty Thomas, 39, and step-father, Gomer Thomas, 50, in their Columbus home last Aug. 6.

Lewis gave this version of Miller's statement to police:

Gomer Thomas had intervened in a dispute between his wife and step-son over Miller's dating of Miss Perkins. First Miller struck his father with his fist.

"His mother either grabbed him (Miller) or said something and he hit her with his fist. Miller then said he picked up a hammer and struck each one a blow," Lewis testified.

Miller returned from the kitchen with more weapons, the officer continued. "First he attacked his father with a claw hammer, and then two knives. Then his mother. He then said he placed a length of rope around his mother's neck. I asked him if this was an attempt to strangle her, and he said 'yes'".

Miller, who has pleaded innocent and innocent by reason of insanity, remained calm throughout most of the hearing. When the prosecution introduced color pictures of the murder victims, however, Miller dashed into an ante room and beat his fists on a table.

Devine, in his opening statement, presented a description of events leading to the slayings similar to that given by Lewis.

Defense Attorney Roland G. Allen, in his opening statement, said Devine's facts were true. But he added, in explanation of Miller's insanity plea: "we think the evidence will show that on this fateful day...he just blew up."

Kentucky Student Falls, Drowns

RICHMOND, Ky. (AP) — An Eastern Kentucky State College student, working on a float for the school's homecoming program Saturday, fell in the dark and drowned in a one-foot-deep creek Wednesday night. The body of Byron Brooks Hall, 20, Brodhead, was found in Dreaming Creek near the rear entrance of a garage where he had been working. Coroner Jack Turpin said a mark on the youth's head indicated he was knocked unconscious when he fell.

Tot Is Rescued From Deep Well

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP)—A four-year-old girl owes her life today to two quick-acting motorists. State Police said Wednesday when Linda Louise Rodgers fell into the 18-foot well at her nearby home, her mother hailed Charles Oliver and Juett Tackett. Oliver lowered Tackett into the well, where he pulled the unconscious child from the water. Then Oliver revived her with artificial respiration.

Seaway Building 25 Pct. Done

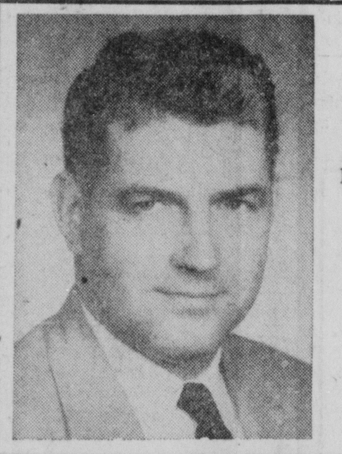

WASHINGTON (AP)—The St. Lawrence Seaway, one of the world's greatest construction projects, is about 25 per cent completed.

That estimate came Wednesday from Edward R. Place, information director of the St. Lawrence Seaway Development Corp., the agency administering the U. S. portion of the 27-foot-deep international waterway.

He said that about 90 per cent of the world's cargo vessels will be able to use the completed seaway.

Look what you don't have to iron...

when you have an electric dryer!

Sheets, towels and pillow cases dry so wrinkle-free in an electric dryer that you can just fold them up and put them away.

Jeans, corduroys and T-shirts are ready-to-wear just as they come from the dryer—with no ironing.

Underthings and nightwear dried in a dryer are smooth enough to wear without ironing, and are far more soft and comfy, too.

All in all, an electric dryer actually cuts your ironing time by a third or more!

And the lifting and lugging you save! No wrestling a 30-lb. basket of clothes out to the clothesline. No bending and stretching to hang up each piece. All you do is slip your clothes from washer to dryer and set the dial. The electric dryer does the rest.

Because an electric dryer is flameless, clothes come out fresh, sweet and clean. And the cost of an electric dryer, including installation, is far less than for any other fully automatic type. Why not let your appliance dealer show you an electric dryer now? He's offering special values during Dryer-Buyer days.

"Mary Haworth's Mail"

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: When our family moved to this town I wasn't yet 12 years old, but I was enrolled in the seventh grade. In so doing, I skipped three-fourths of the school term; and it seems that from now on, I will always be younger than my classmates. This makes a problem.

Now I am in the eighth grade; and when I went back to school this fall, the girls in my class were talking about their clothes for this term. Then they started comparing notes about their second pair of pumps (for dressup), their lipstick and earrings. When they included me in the conversation, I had to lie and say that my mother had got me the same things.

But the truth is, my mother seems to think I am too young to wear these things even though the pumps I want have only two-inch heels; and the lipstick is a medium shade; and the small earrings would be for Sundays. My mother says that I am "just 12," and that I should dress "like a child of 12." Do you think my mother should act this way?

All of my classmates are 13, and most will be 14 soon; and no child wants to dress like a 12-year-old when the rest of her classmates are 14, and dress like 14-year-olds.

H. C.

DEAR H. C.: As Shakespeare said, "There's nothing either good or bad but thinking makes it so." You have a problem of dress in relation to classmates, only because you think you have. If you were a happy-go-lucky, self-confident, tomboyish sort of girl, who couldn't be bothered with lipstick, earrings and pumps with heels, you'd get along fine with the dressy crowd at school—just being yourself.

That I can testify for sure—speaking from personal knowledge of schoolgirls together. I have in mind a group situation, recently, in which the girls were just entering their teens; and all but one were competitively fashion - conscious, with emphasis on feminine frippery such as lipsticks, earrings "heels" (as they say), and datebait dress.

As I say, there was this one girl (a trifle younger than the rest) who stuck to her own easy style through junior high school without "varsity touches" such as lipstick, earrings, etc., when the others "dressed up" for social events in which she was included. And she was always as popular as a girl could wish, was affectionately known by a charming nickname—and was good at games and studies too.

Dress Plays Part

On the other hand, I know another girl who became very interested in big-girl dress at a rather prematurely early age. Between 12 and 14, she had a yen to dress more like a 16-year-old—to wear high heels, lipstick, curvaceous high-style modes, etc. Her mother, sympathetically aware of a childish effort to annex social self-confidence via "older" dress—and humorously touched by the outlandish unsuitability of the child's clothes-preference (at that age) —put aside her own good taste, and permitted the child to please herself in some selections.

No harm came of the mother's accommodating policy—maybe because the mother was mentally on her toes, governing and nurturing the girl's development, while also giving her leeway for hopeful, experimental self - assertiveness. But the child didn't improve her looks by the garb she chose, though she may have enjoyed a big season of self-esteem, thanks to her mother's understanding spirit.

Good parents must use their own common sense, related to their particular circumstances, in giving their children helpful rearing. So I can't advise you what your mother should do about you. However, I think if a child of mine were to bring this very problem to me, I'd try to help her see, first the cowardice of lying, which is a very childish trait indeed. And then I believe I might allow her the pumps, the earrings and lipstick (if I could afford), to put her on a style-par with classmates—supposing the classmates are nice people.

County Cagers Open Season's Play On Friday

Pickaway County's 1955-56 basketball season officially opens Friday night with three games on tap.

Saltcreek's Warriors will play host to the Trojans of Darby; Jackson's Wildcats travel to Williamsport for a game with the Deers; and Scioto will take on Atlanta's Red Raiders. Two other games originally scheduled for Friday night have been moved back to Nov. 29—Monroe vs. Pickaway and Walnut vs. Ashville.

Scioto and Ashville are last year's co-champs. Fans will long remember the thrilling game between these two teams in the crowded Scioto gym which the Buffaloes narrowly won. Then these same squads met during the tournament here and Ashville came out on top.

On Nov. 11, both will meet again on the Broncos' home court. Last year, they did not clash until late in the season.

* * *

THE COUNTY LEAGUE appears to be pretty evenly balanced this season. With half a dozen new coaches in the county schools, some of the teams may have a bit of trouble at the start. But as the season progresses, competition should stiffen considerably.

Some of the teams which are playing Friday night have had only four days of practice from the end of the six-man football season. That apparently is why two of the contests were moved back to the end of the month.

The season will end on Feb. 3, 1956. The county tournament will be held Feb. 13-24 at the Fairgrounds Coliseum.

White Squirrel Is Family Pet

LOUISVILLE, Ky, (AP) — A rare snow-white female squirrel has Albert Britt up a tree. He doesn't know what to name her.

'My wife is trying to name it 'Snowball,' like a cat or something," Britt said with a bit of scorn.

While the Britts are trying to settle on a name, the bushy-tailed albino is living it up in a bird cage, dining on bread and nuts. She is released occasionally for a romp around the room with her master.

He plans to keep her, reasoning she wouldn't survive long in the wilds with her tameness and conspicuous coat.

Alabama's highest football score was 110-0 against Marion Military Institute in 1922. The worst setback for Alabama was by 78-0 at the hands of Vanderbilt in 1906.

FOOTBALL FORECAST

These selections are by Walter L. Johns, Central Press Sports Editor
LAST WEEK: 25 right, 10 wrong, 3 ties; total to date: 108 right, 50 wrong, 10 ties (ties count as wrong)--per cent: 64.

Race Not Issue In Grid Contest

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—A Negro football team tonight will play a regularly scheduled game against a white public school for the first time in Oklahoma, but a sellout crowd isn't paying much attention to the race issue.

The big question is whether Oklahoma City Capitol Hill can break the amazng 46 - game winning streak of Douglass, this city's Negro high school.

For years, Capitol Hill and Douglass have scrimmaged each other. With the end of race segregation in the public schools this fall, the teams decided to play a regularly scheduled game.

Bragan Tapped As New Pilot Of Pirates

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Bob Bragan, a 37-year-old veteran of eight years as a minor league manager who makes no secret of his admiration for Branch Rickey, is the new field manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Rickey, who became chairman of the board after resigning as general manager, wasn't at the news conference when Bragan was handed a one-year contract for an undisclosed salary yesterday.

Bragan, apparently referring to the help Rickey has given him, made it clear he owes a lot to the mahatma and will try to exploit the youth movement which Rickey began in his five year reign. Rickey was succeeded by 37-year-old Joe L. Brown, one of his front office assistants.

Just as he did in becoming manager of Hollywood of the Pacific Coast League, Bragan follows Fred Haney as manager of the Pirates. Haney was let out by Rickey at the end of last season after three years.

Haney recently signed as a coach with the Milwaukee Braves.

While Haney was struggling with the last place Pirates, Bragan was having fine success in Hollywood. In 1953, his first year as manager, he was voted the most valuable manager in the PCL for winning the championship.

Indiana Gridders Hold Hidden Power

COLUMBUS (AP) — "Some week we're going to eliminate these mistakes and beat the pants off somebody."

That was the warning from Tom Miller, Indiana University athletic publicity director, to Ohio State football rooters yesterday. He was speaking of what he called the Hoosier's repeated errors on the playing field.

The Buckeyes play Indiana here Saturday. Clive Rush, OSU assistant coach, said Indiana has a big and tough team, the biggest the Bucks have met all year. "They can go all the way anytime," said Rush.

Spartan Sophomore Shines In Big 10

CHICAGO (AP) — Sophomore Walter Kowalczyk, Michigan State halfback, is giving the veterans a run for it in Big Ten football statistics.

The 6-foot, 198-pounder from Westfield, Mass., has vaulted to third on the conference ground gaining list.

Kowalczyk's feat of barreling through Wisconsin for 172 yards last week gave him a net of 256 in four league games on 36 carries and the No. 1 average of 7.1.

Illinois' Harry Jefferson tops the rushing department with 296 in 55 trips for 5.3. Howard Cassady of Ohio State, is second.

Maryland coach Jim Tatum calls Wake Forest's Bob Bartholomew "a one-man wrecking crew." He plays offence and defence as a tackle. The 218-pounder comes from Rocky Mount, N. C.

Race Not Issue In Grid Contest

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—A Negro football team tonight will play a regularly scheduled game against a white public school for the first time in Oklahoma, but a sellout crowd isn't paying much attention to the race issue.

The big question is whether Oklahoma City Capitol Hill can break the amazng 46 - game winning streak of Douglass, this city's Negro high school.

For years, Capitol Hill and Douglass have scrimmaged each other. With the end of race segregation in the public schools this fall, the teams decided to play a regularly scheduled game.

Bragan Tapped As New Pilot Of Pirates

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Bob Bragan, a 37-year-old veteran of eight years as a minor league manager who makes no secret of his admiration for Branch Rickey, is the new field manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Rickey, who became chairman of the board after resigning as general manager, wasn't at the news conference when Bragan was handed a one-year contract for an undisclosed salary yesterday.

Bragan, apparently referring to the help Rickey has given him, made it clear he owes a lot to the mahatma and will try to exploit the youth movement which Rickey began in his five year reign. Rickey was succeeded by 37-year-old Joe L. Brown, one of his front office assistants.

Just as he did in becoming manager of Hollywood of the Pacific Coast League, Bragan follows Fred Haney as manager of the Pirates. Haney was let out by Rickey at the end of last season after three years.

Haney recently signed as a coach with the Milwaukee Braves.

While Haney was struggling with the last place Pirates, Bragan was having fine success in Hollywood. In 1953, his first year as manager, he was voted the most valuable manager in the PCL for winning the championship.

Indiana Gridders Hold Hidden Power

COLUMBUS (AP) — "Some week we're going to eliminate these mistakes and beat the pants off somebody."

That was the warning from Tom Miller, Indiana University athletic publicity director, to Ohio State football rooters yesterday. He was speaking of what he called the Hoosier's repeated errors on the playing field.

The Buckeyes play Indiana here Saturday. Clive Rush, OSU assistant coach, said Indiana has a big and tough team, the biggest the Bucks have met all year. "They can go all the way anytime," said Rush.

Spartan Sophomore Shines In Big 10

CHICAGO (AP) — Sophomore Walter Kowalczyk, Michigan State halfback, is giving the veterans a run for it in Big Ten football statistics.

The 6-foot, 198-pounder from Westfield, Mass., has vaulted to third on the conference ground gaining list.

Kowalczyk's feat of barreling through Wisconsin for 172 yards last week gave him a net of 256 in four league games on 36 carries and the No. 1 average of 7.1.

Illinois' Harry Jefferson tops the rushing department with 296 in 55 trips for 5.3. Howard Cassady of Ohio State, is second.

Maryland coach Jim Tatum calls Wake Forest's Bob Bartholomew "a one-man wrecking crew." He plays offence and defence as a tackle. The 218-pounder comes from Rocky Mount, N. C.

Cleveland Bans Hurricane Jackson

CLEVELAND (AP)—Tommy (Hurricane) Jackson, fourth ranking heavyweight contender, has been banned from boxing in Cleveland until he submits to a physical examination.

The Cleveland Boxing Commission said Jackson was suspended for refusing to submit to a medical check after last Friday's bout with Jimmy Slade. After losing a 10 round decision to Slade, Jackson complained in his dressing room that he was unable to walk.

He agreed to go to a hospital with an official, but when they arrived Jackson refused to be examined, the commission said.

Wrestling Referees Placed On Shelf

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The California Athletic Commission has placed on the unavailable list two wrestling referees who recently testified before a state assembly investigating committee that they were advised before matches who was to be the winner.

The assembly committee had promised there would be no penalty or discrimination against anyone testifying before it.

North Carolina has a standout ground gainer back this season. He is halfback Ed Sutton of Cullowhee, N. C., who averaged 11.2 yards per carry in 1954.

Former CHS Star, Johnny Valentine, At Bowling Green

Johnny Valentine, "Sandy Hill's blocking fullback" for Circleville High School not too many years ago, is now playing center on the Bowling Green University's freshman squad.

Valentine, one of the "oldest" men on the team at 23, only recently returned from a four-year tour of duty with the Navy. He is termed one of the best fullbacks CHS has ever had.

The ex-Tiger is 5-foot 11-inches tall and packs 205 pounds. He is now considered one of the best linemen on the first year squad at BG.

Allie Reynolds is the last pitcher to hurl two World Series shutouts. He blanked Brooklyn 2-0 in 1952 and shut out Brooklyn 1-0 in the 1949 opener.

National League umpire Lon Warneke, a pitching star for the Chicago Cubs in his playing days, blanked Detroit, 3-0, in the opener of the 1935 World Series.

Cotton Bowl Chiefs Checking On Teams

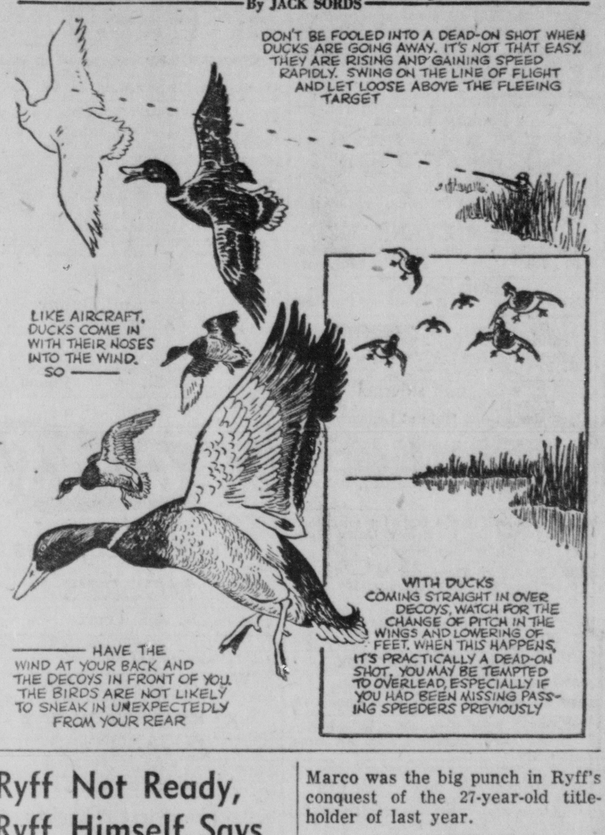

DALLAS (AP)—Georgia Tech, Tennessee, Mississippi State and Auburn will get the eye this week as the Cotton Bowl starts looking over prospects for its Jan. 2 game.

Others on the list are West Virginia, Mississippi, Army and Navy but Tech hooks up with Tennessee and Mississippi State with Auburn Saturday in two of the games.

The first time that Nashua ever ran worse than second was in the recent Sysonby at Belmont Park when he finished third against older horses.

Ryff Not Ready, Ryff Himself Says

BALTIMORE (AP)—"Frankie Ryff needs more fights before challenging Bud Smith for the lightweight title," says Frankie Ryff.

Contrary to the customary "bring on the champ" bellow of a winner, Ryff took a calm outlook last night after he whipped former title holder Paddy DeMarco in a 10 rounder.

A sixth round knockdown of DeMarco was the big punch in Ryff's conquest of the 27-year-old titleholder of last year.

The Yale-Columbia rivalry marks the oldest in the history of the Ivy League. They first met in 1872 when the Elis conquered the Lions, 3-0.

Michigan End Is Top Lineman

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Tom Maentz, whom they called "that other end" when Michigan's football season started, finds himself as the Associated Press lineman of the week today.

The 20-year-old junior from Holland, Mich., was voted the week's best lineman by the nation's sportswriters for his blazing performance Saturday against Iowa. His pair of touchdown catches literally pulled Michigan out of defeat.

Navy has beaten William and Mary 18 times in 21 games of football. The Indians won two and played a tie with the Middies whom they last defeated in 1942 by 3-0.

Cleveland Bans Hurricane Jackson

CLEVELAND (AP)—Tommy (Hurricane) Jackson, fourth ranking heavyweight contender, has been banned from boxing in Cleveland until he submits to a physical examination.

The Cleveland Boxing Commission said Jackson was suspended for refusing to submit to a medical check after last Friday's bout with Jimmy Slade. After losing a 10 round decision to Slade, Jackson complained in his dressing room that he was unable to walk.

He agreed to go to a hospital with an official, but when they arrived Jackson refused to be examined, the commission said.

Wrestling Referees Placed On Shelf

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The California Athletic Commission has placed on the unavailable list two wrestling referees who recently testified before a state assembly investigating committee that they were advised before matches who was to be the winner.

The assembly committee had promised there would be no penalty or discrimination against anyone testifying before it.

North Carolina has a standout ground gainer back this season. He is halfback Ed Sutton of Cullowhee, N. C., who averaged 11.2 yards per carry in 1954.

Former CHS Star, Johnny Valentine, At Bowling Green

Johnny Valentine, "Sandy Hill's blocking fullback" for Circleville High School not too many years ago, is now playing center on the Bowling Green University's freshman squad.

Valentine, one of the "oldest" men on the team at 23, only recently returned from a four-year tour of duty with the Navy. He is termed one of the best fullbacks CHS has ever had.

The ex-Tiger is 5-foot 11-inches tall and packs 205 pounds. He is now considered one of the best linemen on the first year squad at BG.

Allie Reynolds is the last pitcher to hurl two World Series shutouts. He blanked Brooklyn 2-0 in 1952 and shut out Brooklyn 1-0 in the 1949 opener.

National League umpire Lon Warneke, a pitching star for the Chicago Cubs in his playing days, blanked Detroit, 3-0, in the opener of the 1935 World Series.

Cotton Bowl Chiefs Checking On Teams

DALLAS (AP)—Georgia Tech, Tennessee, Mississippi State and Auburn will get the eye this week as the Cotton Bowl starts looking over prospects for its Jan. 2 game.

Others on the list are West Virginia, Mississippi, Army and Navy but Tech hooks up with Tennessee and Mississippi State with Auburn Saturday in two of the games.

The first time that Nashua ever ran worse than second was in the recent Sysonby at Belmont Park when he finished third against older horses.

Ryff Not Ready, Ryff Himself Says

BALTIMORE (AP)—"Frankie Ryff needs more fights before challenging Bud Smith for the lightweight title," says Frankie Ryff.

Contrary to the customary "bring on the champ" bellow of a winner, Ryff took a calm outlook last night after he whipped former title holder Paddy DeMarco in a 10 rounder.

A sixth round knockdown of DeMarco was the big punch in Ryff's conquest of the 27-year-old titleholder of last year.

The Yale-Columbia rivalry marks the oldest in the history of the Ivy League. They first met in 1872 when the Elis conquered the Lions, 3-0.

Michigan End Is Top Lineman

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Tom Maentz, whom they called "that other end" when Michigan's football season started, finds himself as the Associated Press lineman of the week today.

The 20-year-old junior from Holland, Mich., was voted the week's best lineman by the nation's sportswriters for his blazing performance Saturday against Iowa. His pair of touchdown catches literally pulled Michigan out of defeat.

Navy has beaten William and Mary 18 times in 21 games of football. The Indians won two and played a tie with the Middies whom they last defeated in 1942 by 3-0.

1st Annual State Tractor Pull Contest Set For Fairgrounds

Saturday Event First One Ever Staged In Ohio

Championship Idea Conceived Here At Recent County Fair

Weather permitting, Pickaway County's Fairgrounds east of Circleville will be the site of an important "first" Saturday.

A state championship tractor pulling contest is scheduled for the race track starting at noon. In case of rain, the event will be moved back one week to Nov. 12.

This will be the first time an event of this kind has been held in Ohio. The idea was actually hatched during the recent Pickaway County Fair while the tractor pulling contest was in progress. The entrants were so enthusiastic over the facilities at the Fairgrounds and the success of the competition that they decided to look into a state championship.

The contest at The Fair here began around noon and lasted until one o'clock in the morning before all 67 entrants ended their competition. However, much of this was reportedly due to unnecessary delays which will be corrected during this contest.

* * *

JOHNSON-MINOR Post 618, American Legion, of Williamsport is sponsoring the contest. A total of 15 trophies have been donated for first and second places and include the following donors:

First place — Massey Harris, Inc.; Wood Implement Co.; Cockshutt Manufacturing Co.; Ford Implement Dealers of Ohio; Jones Implement Co.; Circleville Implement Dealers; and Truck-Tractor Equipment Co.

Second place — Standard Oil Co. of Ohio; Firestone Stores of Circleville; Fleetwing Products of Circleville; B. F. Goodrich Co. of Circleville; Sinclair Products of Circleville; Mac's Goodyear Store; and Marathon Dealers.

A grand champion trophy for the top tractor pull has been donated by the Williamsport Legion Post. Prize money will be entry fees in each of the five classes; five places pay.

Approximately 100 entries are expected, according to contest officials. Coy Wagner of Ada, who has 10 years of experience, will be the head judge.

* * *

VISITORS TO The Fair well remember how the tractors tried to pull the sleds containing the concrete blocks. As the loads on the sleds got heavier the more difficult it was for the tractors to pull. Often times the front of the tractor would suddenly rise high into the air.

The men who drove the tractors rode their machines with exacting skill almost simulating a cowboy trying to break in a new bronco. Many of these men do it for a hobby while others compete in many contests.

This competition is open to anyone capable of driving a tractor. Duals, chains, four-wheel drives, steel lugs or tracks will not be permitted.

The actual pull will be from an 8-foot chain. Distance of the pull will be 20 feet. Lanes will be 12 to 15 feet wide and contestants must stay within these boundaries.

Entrants may choose either end of the sled on the second pull, providing they pass their second pull and follow in order of their pulls for their second try. Starts must be without jerking; the pull must begin with a tight chain. Drawbar height shall not exceed 18 inches to top of drawbar.

* * *

DRIVERS MUST stay in their seats at all times. Winners must weigh out. The judges' decisions are final.

There will be five weight classes: Class A — 4,000 pounds; Class B — 6,000 pounds; Class C — 8,000 pounds; Class D — 4,000 pounds team pull; and Class E — 6,000 pounds team pull.

If this competition is successful, the contest may become an annual event here. Entrants from all parts of the state are expected.

Ex-Prof Convicted For Probe Silence

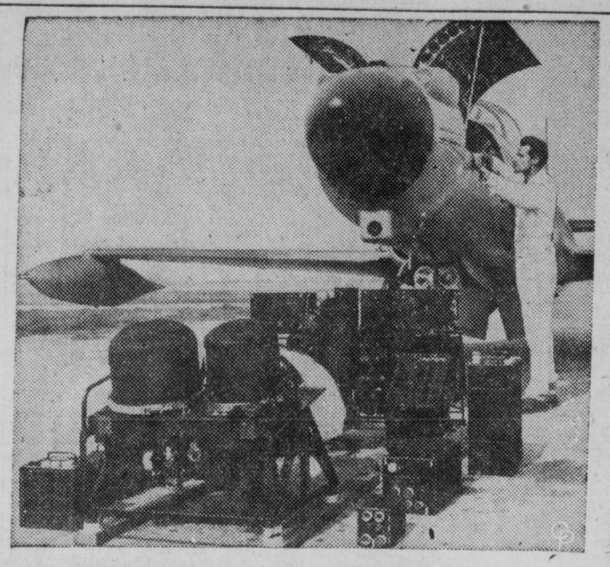

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lawrence Baker Arguimbau, formerly on the faculty of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, was convicted yesterday of contempt of Congress for refusing to name past Communist associates.

U. S. Dist. Judge James W. Morris, who heard the case without a jury, ruled that questions put to Arguimbau by the House Committee on UnAmerican Activities were "pertinent," and that it was contempt when Arguimbau refused to answer them.

Judge Morris did not sentence Arguimbau immediately. The maximum possible sentence is a year in jail plus a $1,000 fine.

Windsor Silent

PARIS (AP)—The Duke of Windsor, who once renounced the throne of England "for the woman I love," made it known through his secretary here that he had no comment on Princess Margaret's decision to give up marrying Group Captain Peter Townsend.

THE SECRET of how interceptor planes guarding the North American continent can seek out and destroy bombers in any kind of weather is revealed by the Air Force to be an electronic brain and a radar "eye." Above, components of the "seek-find-and-kill" system are spread out in front of an F-94 fighter at Culver City, Calif. The equipment enables the plane to locate enemy aircraft at long range, directs the pilot on the most advantageous course, then automatically launches missiles at the correct instant. (International)

Mercer Election Aide Sworn In

COLUMBUS (AP) — Secretary of State Ted W. Brown yesterday swore in Charles G. Schrage of St. Henry as a Democratic member of the Mercer County election board.

Brown headed the ceremony in the Montgomery County election board office in Dayton. The secretary had been visiting election board offices in Springfield and Dayton to transact routine business.

Schrage succeeds Charles C. Barrenbrugge of Celina, resigned.

Cincy Bakery Aides End Strike

CINCINNATI (AP) — A new contract yesterday ended a strike at the Vogelmann Bakery, Newport, Ky., and gave bakery driver-salesmen in the Greater Cincinnati area their first five-day work week.

Signing of a two-year contract by management and Local 114, AFL Teamsters' Union, ended a strike of 26 driver-salesmen which began last Thursday.

The new contract provides $75 a week pay, and increased commissions one-half per cent for the first year, and one per cent the second year.

Death, Stork Both Visit Dayton Family

DAYTON (AP) — A 23-year - old mother bore her fifth child today unaware her 4-year-old second son died a few hours before under strange circumstances.

The fourth son of Mrs. Edna Lee Sterzinger, 23, was born at 2:04 a. m. today. One hour and 37 minutes later, her husband, Edward E. Sterzinger, 26, walked into the Dayton station of the highway patrol and reported Mark Anthony Benton, 4, a stepson, was dead.

Sterzinger explained he had not wanted to tell his wife because the arrival of another child was imminent.

The patrol summoned sheriff's deputies and Sterzinger led them to the boy's body. The body was stuffed in a box in an outbuilding near the Sterzinger home.

Dr. Robert E. Zipf, coroner, said the boy bore heavy bruises across the back, 10 to 15 bumps on the head, cuts and scar tissue.

He placed the time of death at between 1 and 10 p. m. yesterday and said death was caused by pneumonia and lack of food.

The scars on the wrists, the coroner said, indicated "the boy's hands had been tied tightly."

Deputy J. E. Reece quoted Sterzinger as saying he thrashed the boy about a week ago for bedwetting.

Sterzinger was held in jail for investigation of child neglect.

Afghanistan Plans Czech Arms Deal

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Afghanistan Embassy says an arms mission from Kabul is going to Czechoslovakia "to buy spare parts" for weapons purchased in that country prior to World War II.

Second Secretary Ghulam Farouk said the purchases which will include "new parts" were for reasons of internal security but could give no information on the size of the arms deal or its terms.

In response to questions, Farouk conceded that relations with Pakistan, bordering Afghanistan on the south and east, have been "not good and deteriorated lately."
